Today

Five Years Ago Yesterday
Careful With Your Troops
Size Is Nothing
They Also Serve

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.)

Five years ago yesterday this country entered the war with Germany. Mothers were crying, patriots were profiteering, bond drives, Red Cross drives, etc., were booming. Soldiers were marching, with everything on earth promised to them. Now it's all over until the next war, and it seems a long time ago—especially to soldiers that got nothing, not even the old job, when they came home.

Eight thousand miners paraded yesterday in Pennsylvania. Mounted troopers charged the men and injured thirty. Unless that was absolutely necessary, it was extremely foolish. Cut wages if you must and can. Starve the men back to work, if you wish, for that is your legal right, as things are run. But be a little careful with your charging troopers. One charge too many might have bad results. One match is enough, in a powder factory.

In Lincoln Hospital, New York City, yesterday, a boy baby was born weighing two pounds and one ounce. It is the record in smallness for New York hospitals. Strong, well built, the tiny baby began to breathe and cry at once, as babies should, and will live to weigh, perhaps, 100 times his birth weight.

You remember that a grizzly bear cub, weighing about half a pound at birth, weighs 2,000 times as much later. So it is not so wonderful.

The real human creature born in that little body is a soul, weighing nothing at all, not even the ten-thousandth part of a grain. Size does not count.

A lady thought she was marrying a musician, found she had married a waiter, asked the judge for a divorce, on the ground that she had been tricked into marrying an inferior. The wise judge said: "No, stay married, waiters are as respectable as any man."

They are, indeed, and if competent they are artists, and often philosophers. All missed a good deal that did not know Eugene, head waiter at old Delmonico's, corner of 14th street, New York, later boss of the Grand Hotel at Monte Carlo. Humanity had no secrets for him, and James Gordon Bennett asked his advice.

They also serve who only stand and wait.

Australia will subsidize its cattle raisers, by paying a subsidy, or bounty, on beef and mutton exported. Great stocks of meat in London were accumulated there on war contracts; both Australians and they complain that "the active hostility of the American beef trust" hurts their sales.

If the American beef trust is using its power to sell cattle grown by American farmers, rather than foreign cattle, some one in that trust is wise.

This government and the tariff makers should interest themselves in meat export subsidies anywhere.

Gradually woman demands her rights and gets them. She demands in America exactly the same status as men, and will get it. This does not mean, as idiots assert, that she ought to be a fireman or policeman. You might as well say that because man is woman's equal, he ought to take his turn as wet nurse.

The Protestant Episcopal Church plans to cut "obey" out of the marriage ceremony on the ground that the woman need be no more obedient than the man. Omitted also will be the "with all my wordly goods I thee endow" part. Where that is left out a hymn will be sung.

The Buddhist nuns of Japan who serve in the temples of Gautama also demand their rights, and say they want to live as freely as the Buddhist monks live. They want the right to marry, now denied them, and they don't want to shave their heads, which is now compulsory. Here we have ladies forbidden by school superintendents to bob their short hair—across the Pacific those Buddhist ladies demand the right to grow the hair long.

The main thing is that women are awake and don't intend to go to sleep again.

It is hard to cure Asiatics of opium and Europeans of royalty. Napoleon lies under the gilded dome of the Invalides. Millions read reverently the words attributed to him: "I want my body to rest on the edge of the Seine, among the French people that I have so much loved." It would have been more accurate if he had written, "Among the French people that I have killed in such wholesale fashion."

Now dies Charles of Austria, who tried to be emperor in a feeble way and failed, after the war collapsed. His heart is cut out, [illegible] to Austria. His body will be sent to Hungary. Austria and Hungary would both have been better off had they been rid of Hapsburgs, heart and body, boots and breeches, for the last hundred years. Austria has had no ruler worth talking about since Maria Theresa, a woman.

McGARR IS TOLD ALL DETAILS

Sergeant Carnes Makes Full Statement of His Part in Sale of Stolen Papers

Today's developments in the police-civil service scandal were:

1—Detective Sergeant Albert W. Carnes, who resigned two days ago, made a full statement of his part in the scandal to Chief Inspector John R. McGarr, whose report after a department probe, given to Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, was said to reveal huge sale of copies of stolen examination papers to department members, seeking promotion. Carnes' statement was said to "contain dynamite."

2—John J. McMasters, discharged civil service examiner made full confession to the Boston American.

3—Scandal widened to Lynn, Mayor Harland A. McPhetres holding up Lynn police promotions.

4—Civil Service Commissioner Payson Dana, conferred with Police Commissioner Wilson, announcing that examination papers submitted to civil service office for past year would be scrutinized.

The scope of the police-civil service scandal today widened with the rapidity and sureness of a mill-pond ripple following the splash of a pebble. The police departments of both Boston and Lynn were involved.

MATCHING EVIDENCE.

Police Commissioner Wilson announced that if sufficient evidence was disclosed of crookedness on the part of Boston policemen in examination for promotion prosecutions will follow.

The police commissioner and Commissioner Dana were closeted for two hours. They were matching evidence, it was said, the police commissioner having received the report of Chief Inspector McGarr on the police end of the scandal which has caused a sensation.

Commissioner Dana revealed evidence of the findings in his department.

It was learned on high authority that the scandal in the police department was more widespread than

Denby to Keep Navy Yard Open Unless Congress Balks

The Navy Department is not considering in any way the closing of the Charlestown Navy Yard, and only the failure of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds to keep it open will cause a suspension of activities there.

This news was conveyed to Governor Cox today in a telegram from Secretary of the Navy Denby. The telegram reads:

"The Navy Department has no plans at present for closing the Boston Navy Yard. The entire matter depends on legislation now pending in Congress."

PRISONER NEAR DEATH AFTER LEAP FROM TRAIN

Leavenworth, Kan., April 7.—Robert Hampton, thirty-five years old, of Detroit, took a chance in a thousand today to escape serving a ten-year term in the Federal penitentiary here, but lost. On the last lap of his journey to prison, convicted of motor car thefts, he dove from a Pullman car window. The train was near Rushville, Mo., and was traveling at fifty miles an hour. Hampton was picked up and taken to the Penitentiary Hospital, where it was stated he would probably die of his injuries.

New York, April 7.—Federal officers captured four alleged narcotic smuglers and confiscated $60,000 worth of opium after a chase in which a score of shots were fired in Chinatown. Tourists getting their first view of Pell and Mott streets shrieked and ran, and sightseeing bus drivers swerved their unwieldy vehicles around corners as the Federal men opened fire. The fugitive cab stopped and the men surrendered. The opium confiscated was found in the taxi.

Brookline Manufacturer Tells of Watch Set on Mrs. Morrill and Chase

Leon G. Morrill, wealthy Brookline manufacturer, suing his pretty wife, Florence R. Morrill for divorce, admitted on the stand in the Dedham Court today he had kissed Mrs. Sara Carter, wife of Douglas S. Carter, whom Morrill names as one of the corespondents.

Carter has instituted divorce action against his wife, alleging desertion, during the period in which Morrill had testified that Carter paid considerable atention to Mrs. Morrill.

Miss Margaret Dickson, a pretty blonde, formerly a maid in the Morrill home, was scheduled to appear today as a star witness for the husband.

She was expected to relate some sensational happenings that occurred in the Morrill home from May, 1918, until she left. It was said these revelations would involve Mrs. Morrill and Carter.

HIRED DETECTIVES.

Admission by Morrill that he had employed men and women detectives to trail Mrs. Morrill and Seth K. Chase, former lieutenant-colonel in the United States army air service, during the Summer of 1918, and further details of the occasion when Morrill and two detectives are alleged to have found Mrs. Morrill and Chase also in a Brookline apartment, were brought out. Morrill spent $2,500 on detectives.

The court, where the suit is being heard before Judge Nelson P. Brown, was again thronged with Boston and Brookline society people.

Mrs. Morrill, attired in a most becoming blue broadcloth suit, with hat and stockings to match, laughed

GIRL SWALLOWS POISON IN HOTEL ROOM

Mystery surrounding the attempt of Evelyn Dulong, beautiful young matron, to end her life by swallowing poison in the Clarendon Hotel, was cleared today through the finding of the girl's husband at No. 13 Lowell street, Arlington Heights.

The young wife took five poison tablets in a hotel room and was hurried to the City Hospital.

There it is said her chances for recovery are slim.

At the hospital she moaned continually, "Eddie, oh Eddie, come and take me."

"Who is Eddie?" was asked, her husband's name being Frank.

"It's me," said the husband, when

Why Keep Unused Furniture? Cash Is More Practical

Have you a collection of furniture in your house which has been "retired" by the purchase of other pieces? Chances are you will never use any of it again, and it is only collecting dust and deteriorating in value.

It would be good business to sell this furniture and turn the cash you realize from its sale into a paying investment.

There are many people who would buy good used furniture if they knew where to find it. Tell them through a "For Sale" ad in The American and realize on your needless belongings.

MORRILL KISSED MRS. CARTER, WIFE OF MAN HE ACCUSES IN SUIT

SPENT $2,500 ON DETECTIVES PREPARING HIS CASE, SAYS PLAINTIFF

and chatted with her fourteen-year-old son and Seth K. Chase before the court opened.

Morrill resumed the stand when court opened. He admitted he had paid numerous visits to his lawyers about possible court action.

Q.—Your attorney mentioned the importance of not having any relations as man and wife during this period? A.—Yes.

WARNED BY COUNSEL.

Q.—He warned you to be careful of your own conduct? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you tell him that kissing was more or less common in your set? A.—No, sir.

Q.—But you admit that this was a common practice? A.—Yes.

Q.—It is a fact that you have kissed Mrs. Carter, is it not? A.—Yes.

Morrill admitted that when he had paid a visit to Mrs. Carter in the Summer of 1918 at Beach Bluff, he had discussed the subject of divorce with her.

Q.—Why did you say previously you did not have any talk on the subject? A.—I was confused.

Q.—Was it not the result of advice by some of these lawyers that you must not let that come out in this case. A.—No.

Q.—How many other women in your set have you kissed? The witness hesitated.

Q.—Hard to remember, is it not? A.—Yes, sir.

Attorney Thompson launched into a description of a raid by Morrill and two detectives, when the door into an apartment of Mrs. Morrill's mother was broken down with hammers. Mrs. Morrill was found in bed and Colonel Chase was wandering about another part of the apartment.

MADE NOTATIONS.

Morrill said he had jotted down on a slip of paper the time of arrival of Mrs. Morrill and Chase at the house. He said it was 9:40 p. m. He made other notations at 10:05 and 10:55, he said.

Referring to Morrill's previous testimony that he had first stood beneath the bedroom window and had seen Mrs. Morrill in her night dress moving about the room with Chase, Attorney Thompson asked:

Can you swear that standing where you were, 30 feet below the window level, you could tell the difference between a white dress and a night gown?

"Yes, sir," Morrill replied. "Besides I was not 30 feet below the window level."

Q.—Where was Chase when you first saw him after breaking into that apartment? A.—He was coming down the reception hall.

Thompson said two persons employed by Morrill submitted reports to him dealing with the doings of Mrs. Morrill and Chase, when they were at Nantucket at the same time. One of the detectives was Lyons and the other a woman.

Q.—Where else did you have a man or woman watching your wife and Chase? A.—In various places in and about Boston and on outside trips they took.

Q.—Did these detectives ever report any misconduct? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you ever watch your wife before that night, August 4? A.—No.

Q.—You mean, personally you did not watch her? A.—Yes.

Q.—But your lawyers had her watched? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't allow your wife the use of the automobile after July, 1918, did you? A.—No.

Q.—That's Smith, sitting over there, isn't it? (Pointing to a detective in the corner of the courtroom.) A.—Yes.

KNOWN 15 YEARS.

Q.—How long have you known his? A.—Fifteen years.

Q.—Were Mr. and Mrs. Smith in your "set"? A.—Not at that time.

Q.—When did they come into your "set"? A.—They never have.

Q.—Didn't you tell your wife more than once to have nothing to do with Mr. and Mrs. Smith? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Did you tell your wife you didn't approve of her friendship with George Smith? (The witness denied this at first, and finally said "yes" after his memory was refreshed by the stenographer's reading of her notes.)

Q.—Although Smith and his wife were not good enough to associate with your wife, he was good enough to act as your detective? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you tell your wife these Smiths are people you didn't trust? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You've been to dinner with them? A.—Yes.

Q.—And some automobile riding? A.—Yes.

Q.—Had you changed your opinion of the Smiths before you took him on the raid? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't your wife say to him (meaning Smith) that night, "Harold, I'm sorry to see you here on this errand," or words to that effect? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—You won't say she didn't? A.—No.

Q.—Did Detective Economy ever report finding anything on the bed? (This was in reference to the occasion when Morrill testified he and two detectives smashed in the door of a Warwick road, Brookline, apartment and found Mrs. Morrill, in her nightgown, in bed, and Seth K. Chase in another part of the apartment.) A.—No.

Q.—Was Economy a witness for you at the separate support proceedings of your wife? A.—No.

Q.—You knew you were charged with cruel and abusive treatment of your wife? A.—Yes.

Lothrop Withington, former Harvard athlete, and assisting Sherman L. Whipple, counsel for Mrs. Morrill, then cross examined Morrill. In reply to questions about the occasion when he and his wife were in the bathroom, after which Morrill saw her reflection in the mirror as she left and turned the corner to enter Carter's room, Morrill said he saw Mrs. Morrill straightening back from the foot of the bed. He did not see them in bed together, he said. He denied he had previously testified he had slept in the same room with his wife the night of the day he discovered her in Carter's room.

Morrill admitted he had ordered a Boston firm not to allow Mrs. Morrill to charge any more liquors to his bill. That was in September, 1918. He denied he had cut off her credit for groceries.

Morrill said that in the fall of 1918, he went to the office of Frank Russell, where his wife was employed, and asked her to sign a questionnaire that he might be exempted from war service. In the questionnaire it was stated his wife was dependent on him for support, although he had admitted he was not paying her anything at that time.

Q.—Did you say Mr. Carter remained at your house six or eight times? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Morrill at the time she stood at the foot of the bed leaning over? A.—No, I saw her straightening herself back.

Q.—That night was the last night you know of that Mr. Carter stayed all night at your house? A.—Yes.

SPOKE TO CARTER.

Q.—In your talk with him, you told him in substance to see less of Mrs. Morrill? A.—Yes.

Q.—You didn't forbid him to see her altogether? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you on July 29 send out the notices for that dinner party? A.—Yes, I will testify to that.

Q.—And after the talk you had with Mr. Dixon you sent out notices to stores to cut off Mrs. Morrill's credit? A.—Yes.

Q.—That was July 29, wasn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were in the habit of paying your wife $100 a month, weren't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—You said Mrs. Morrill went to Rockland, Me., sometime the first part of August. A.—Yes.

Q.—Did she take some maids with her A.—I think she did.

Q.—Sarah did not go? A.—No.

Q.—Margaret Dickson? A.—No.

Q.—Margaret was the nursemaid who looked after little Marguerite, wasn't she? A.—Yes.

GAVE NO MONEY.

Q.—Did you give Mrs. Morrill any money that Summer? A.—No.

Q.—Then if Mrs. Morrill had a nurse girl with her, she paid her from her own sources? A.—Yes.

Q.—When was the next time you sent her a check? A.—In November.

Q.—When was it that you learned that Mrs. Morrill returned from Rockland? A.—Either the 15th or 16th of August.

Q.—Who told you she had returned? A.—I saw her.

Q.—You forbade your wife to have the use of your automobile, didn't you. A.—No.

Q.—Will you swear that you never gave any instructions to the garage people not to let her use your car? A.—Never did.

Q.—Wasn't Mrs. Morrill working in the office of Mr. Russell the Fall of 1918 when you went there to have the questionnaire signed that would exempt you from the service. A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you ask Mrs. Morrill, while she was working there, to sign your questionnaire, which stated that she was dependent on you for a living, so that you could be exempted from service? A.—No, sir.

SIGNED QUESTIONNAIRE.

Q.—You asked her to sign it? A.—Yes.

Q.—And didn't the questionnaire state that she was dependent on you for support? A.—Yes.

Q.—And she was working for Frank Russell and you had not contributed to her a cent. A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't she say: 'Do you want me to sign this under the present circumstances?' A.—No.

Q.—She signed it, didn't she? A.—Yes.

DETECTIVES FOUND NOTHING

Q.—Where was Chase when you first saw him after breaking into that apartment? A.—He was coming down the reception hall.

Q.—Where else did you have a man or woman watching your wife and Chase? A.—In various places in and about Boston and on outside trips they took.

Q.—Did these detectives ever report any misconduct? A.—No, sir.—From the testimony of Leon G. Morrill.

Captain Gordon, who was connected with the office of former District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts, and who was prominently mentioned in that trial, was removed by Chief of Police John J. McBride upon charges which had to do with his activities in Tuft's office.

Gordon claims the decision was against the law and the evidence.

CURLEY FIGHTS TEN BANK SUITS FOR $7,000,000

Mayor Curley will fight the attempt made by ten Boston National banks to recover more than $7,000,000 on taxes assessed by the city against shares of stock outstanding in the hands of individuals, which tax was paid in each instance by the banks.

In some instances these suits attempt to recover back taxes collected as far back as 1917.

To avoid delay in the fight the Mayor will present an order to the city council Monday asking that an appropriation of $50,000 be made for the employment of special counsel and staff to defend any suit now pending or hereafter instituted against the city for the recovery of bank taxes where the claim is made that the collection was illegal.

The First National Bank alone has a claim for over $3,500,000.

letters. I had one three days ago he reached her bedside. "My middle name is Edward. But Evelyn always called me Eddie."

FEAR OVERTURN OF COLLINS' GOVERNMENT

Predicted Republic Will Be Proclaimed and War on Ulster Declared

In fact, he is besieged in Dublin. It is anticipated a republic will be proclaimed in Ireland within the next few weeks."

The border trouble in Fermanagh County is continually growing more acute, said a dispatch from Inniskillen.

In the district of Belcoo armed Republicans and Orangemen have entrenched themselves behind barricades. The "armies" are separated only by a thirty-foot bridge. News of a battle is expected hourly.

The military defences of Ulster are being strengthened. In some quarters fears are expressed the Irish provisional government at Dublin will be overturned and the Republicans will then declare war on Ulster.

SENATOR'S ARDENT LOVE LETTERS TO TYPIST READ IN DIVORCE SUIT

ALIMONY GRANTED TO WIFE

Depositions in Smith Case Tell of Alleged Auto and Yachting Trips With Girl

Providence, April 7.—Love letters from Senator Arthur T. Smith, president of the Rhode Island Senate, and wealthy business man, to Miss Mary O'Day, a stenographer employed in Smith's office, proved the most sensational evidence introduced in the depositions filed today by Mrs. Alice T. Smith, society matron and president of the Warren branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in her suit against her husband.

Mrs. Smith was awarded alimony and the custody of the children in an agreement by which the suit was settled out of court.

The Senator's letters to the pretty stenographer fairly bristle with terms of endearment. "My Dearest Girl," is mild, and "love to the dearest girl in all the world," is a moderate ending for some of his epistles.

In another letter the Senator signed himself "Your Own Dear Commodore." This was in reference to trips taken on the Smith yacht.

ALL NIGHT TRIPS.

The stories of those yachting parties formed another feature of the depositions. They were gay affairs, declared the wife, and sometimes lasted two or three days and nights.

Other stories of the Senator's escapades with the pretty stenographer were described in the papers. There were all night auto trips across the State line, and of most interesting and exciting twosomes at a boarding house.

According to the depositions, Mrs. Smith's first learned of the shattering of her domestic happiness in 1919, when Senator Smith and Miss O'Day were alone together in the Smith home at Barrington. That happened at least three times that year, said Mrs. Smith.

Once Smith and the stenographer occupied the $30,000 Summer residence from Saturday to Monday—all alone.

"As a result of his conduct with this woman," said the deposition "we separated, but I agreed to go back to him when he promised to amend.

"He did not live up to his promise, however," the deposition continued, "but continued to be intimate with the O'Day girl. He was away from two to three nights a week with her and sometimes the entire week."

NOT LIKE BOSTON.

One of the letters quoted in the papers was, it is alleged, written by the Senator while he was in Boston with the official welcome home party sent from this city to Boston to meet and greet the returning Rhode Island soldiers.

"Boston is not like Boston without Mary," that letter said in one paragraph.

Another letter, also from Boston, enclosed a ticket and instructions to Miss O'Day to "go aboard the Colonial Line boat." A stateroom would be in readiness for her, the letter continued, and "you'll meet Mr. C. H. King."

The wife also told of an automobile trip, she alleges her husband and Miss O'Day took through Pawtucket to a lonely spot on the Attleboro road.

"At this spot the two went to the back seat of the auto and remained there for an hour with the curtains closely drawn," said the depositions.

Details of other auto trips were given in the papers.

The matter of alimony will be taken up and settled next Tuesday. It is expected that special arrangements will be made for the care of the children, Donald, sixteen years old, Mabel, thirteen and Arthur, eight.

YOUNG TWINS ON STEAMER FROM FAR EAST

Missionaries and Rabbis Are Among Passengers Here on City of Valencia

Seven-year-old twins, Alling and Caroline Beardsley of Bound Brook, N. J., were star passengers aboard the steamship City of Valencia, in port today after a long, stormy passage from Calcutta, Port Said and Algiers.

The youngsters made the trip accompanied by an aunt. They proved good sailors and enjoyed the voyage all the way.

Other passengers included returning missionaries and Dr. Yeschaie Horrowitz, formerly chief rabbi at Saffad, Palestine, and Dr. David Silverstein of Minneapolis.

Dr. Horrowitz comes to fill the post of chief rabbi of the Jewish congregations in New York city. Of conditions in Palestine he said:

"Real peace now exists in that country. The idea of religious education, something new in the Far East, is proving popular. There is little likelihood that the old condition of things will ever return.

"Palestine needs more of the wealthier and educated Jews. It is upon this class the country depends for its development."

Miss Mary J. Frith, for years a missionary in India, observed her seventy-fifth birthday aboard ship February 25, while the liner was in the Indian Ocean. She will visit friends in Canada.

Rev. H. A. Wolverton, another Indian missionary, returns to visit his old home in Canada.

WIDOW SEEKS VENGEANCE; 4 ARE JAILED

Quartet Captured in North End Held for Black Hand Murder

She refused to be swerved when warned that her activity in the search for her husband's murderers might result in her own death.

Four men were indicted by the Suffolk County Grand Jury today for murder on January 20 of Michael Scapone of No. 20 Unity street, North End. The men were: Guiseppe Simboli, of East Boston, Francesco Toscano, Guiseppe Anzardo and Luigi Di Pavado all of the North End.

They were at once arraigned in Municipal Court and held without bail. They were later sent to the Charles Street Jail.

The arrest of the four was largely brought about by the sworn vow of the young and beautiful widow, Jennie Scapone to obtain vengeance for her murdered husband.

DEMANDED $400.

It was the young widow who furnished the police with their first clews in a chase that spread all over the Eastern part of the country. And it was the widow who subsequently supplied the tips that finally resulted in the round-up of the suspected slayers today.

Scapone was shot down in front of his home because he had failed to heed written Black Hand demands for $400. He had turned the letters over to the authorities and defied the writers to carry out their threats.

The night of January 19 he received a last warning. It informed him that unless he paid the money that night he would be slain the next day. Again he spurned the demand—and paid for it with his life.

His wife had scarcely closed the door the next morning, when shots rang out and he crumpled, dead, to the sidewalk. When his wife, startled by the shots, flung open the door, she saw four men fleeing down the street. Mrs. Scapone solemnly vowed that she would never be happy again until his slayers were brought to justice.

WIDOW WARNED.

After her husband's murder she was warned by friends and neighbors to leave the district and seek a place of hiding. It was told her that the slayers would undoubtedly follow up their crime by killing her. To these admonitions, however, the brave woman turned deaf ears.

Carrying out this grim resolve, the plucky widow turned over to the authorities all the evidence within her reach—the letters sent her husband with their crude black hands at the bottom, the cross-marked bullets found near the scene of the crime and a few threatening notes sent her personally by the hunted slayers.

As the pursuit of the murderers continued, the widow got threatening missives from different places—and always they hinted that is she didn't stop aiding the police in tracking down the writers she and her two children would next pay the grim price of the notorious "Black Hand."

Undaunted by these letters, though, Mrs. Scapone remained in her cozy little North End home, looking after her two little children and keeping the authorities informed of everything she knew about the hounded slayers.

FAMILIES IN WANT.

The clews which she and the police unearthed were brought to a conclusion today when Inspectors Joseph Cavanero, William Crawford and Michael Burke swooped down in the North End and rounded up the prisoners.

Arrest of the four suspects revealed pitiful cases of squalor and want in their homes. All are married and have large families. Investigators sent to the homes discovered the wives and children in rags and suffering for lack of food and heat. The overseers of the poor were notified.

BLAME HARDING FOR 'PLOT ON DEMOCRATS'

Senators Flay President as Violating Civil Service Laws

(By International News Service)

Washington, April 7.—Democratic Senators made President Harding the target of bitter partisan attack in the Senate today when they renewed their charge he was responsible for alleged infractions of civil service reulations in sweeping Democrats out of office and replacing them with Republicans.

Criticisms of the President by Senators Harrison, Stanley and Caraway took the form of personal denunciation of him and of "Republican spoilsmen."

Harrison charged there was "a diabolical plot to withhold from the American people the reasons for the setting aside of the civil service regulations that Democrats might be thrown out of jobs and Republicans given jobs."

Harrison demanded action on his resolution calling on the President to furnish the Senate with a list of alleged executive orders suspending civil service regulations to permit the appointment of a Republican postmaster at Marion, O., the President's home town.

Harrison referred to Senator Moses of New Hampshire and Senator New of Indiana as "Republican spoilsmen, who evidently reflected in the Senate the views regarding the civil service held at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue."

"The Senator from New Hampshire took his man 'Friday,' ex-Governor Bartlett of his State, and had him made a civil service commissioner. When Bartlett had been on the civil service commission long enough to learn the ropes and to be able to advise the administration where some evacions of the civil service regulations could be worked they made him first assistant postmaster general," Harrison continued.

The prescription, drawn by Dr. Joseph E. Donais of Southbridge, called for "one drachm of syrup of ipecac in four ounces of liq. potassium citrate, to be taken every hour" and further, the report states, "that the prescription, instead of medicine prescribed, contained one drachm of ipecac in four ounces of liq. potassium arsenate, known as Fowler's solution."

MANY INVOLVED IN PROBE OF POLICE SCANDAL

in the civil service office. Examination papers stolen and sold, it was said, had been copied and sold wholesale to members of the department seeking promotion.

For two years, it was declared the evil existed and that many sergeants and lieutenants might be found to have been falsely promoted.

"GOT" HIM.

It was said that Carnes' statement to Inspector McGarr was thorough and "full of dynamite." Carnes, it was learned today, talked freely at the time of his resignation two days ago, to police friends.

It reached those higher up, it was said, prompting Carnes to exclaim today after making his statement: "Well, they got me."

Mayor McPhetres' action in Lynn halted the promotions slated for today of several inspectors being made captains and sergeants going up to the rank of inspector. He ordered a thorough probe. Examination taken by 15 candidates seeking promotion was taken in February. How they stood is said to have been known three days before the results even reached the Mayor.

Following his conference with Commissioner Dana Police Commissioner Wilson said today that he had taken "personal charge" of the scandal as far as it affects the Boston police department.

"POLICE FRIEND."

The confession of John J. McMasters, discharged civil service examiner, admitted freely of the theft and sale of papers and also brought in mention of an unnamed policeman, who made purchases. This policeman was spoken of by another involved with McMasters as "my police friend." McMasters said he had never met Detective Sergeant Carnes.

McMasters, with Frederick J. Thomas, dismissed civil service examiner, conducted the Lynn promotion examinations in Lynn.

McMasters, who lives at No. 63 Collins street, Lynn, revealed that examination questionnaires were left lying carelessly on desks in the Civil Service Department at the State House, available to many of the clerks.

In the same breath, however, he exonerated all others in the employ of the Civil Service Commission when he declared that he and Frederick J. Thomas of No. 85 Eleventh street, Lowell, the other dismissed examiner, were the only ones who purloined examination papers from the office.

He said he was implicated in the unlawful procurement and sale of three examination papers and asserted that his profits therefrom did not total more than $100. He charged Herbert S. Hill of No. 35 Taft street, Revere, seventh assistant clerk in Boston Municipal Criminal Court, with having induced him and Thomas to steal the examination papers.

Hill was suspended from his court position Thursday. McMasters charges that Hill paid him and Thomas, and added that he suspected Hill of reserving the largest share of the gain for himself.

INVOLVES FORMER EXAMINER.

McMasters brought into the scandal for the first time the name of James J. Toner, former civil service examiner, now in charge of training at the Veterans' Bureau, Segal Building. Toner lives at No. 23 Evans street, Dorchester. He is the son of a policeman and is also an instructor in a commercial college.

McMasters alleged that Toner took an examination paper in 1920 which he had a hand in delivering. He says Toner resigned when matters seemed to be getting too hot. Toner will be questioned today by the authorities relative to the charge made by McMasters.

Toner began to work for the Civil Service Commission on October 12, 1919, and resigned January 8, 1921. According to McMasters, Toner was implicated in the taking of one examination paper only and their share was $30 each.

"I'm heartily sorry for what I did," said McMasters today to a Boston American reporter. "I am more sorry for my wife than for myself. I have told her everything and she has given me the most loyal kind of support. I don't think I deserve much sympathy. But I'm not holding back anything. I made a complete confession to Civil Service Commissioner Dana and I don't mind telling you everything I know about this unfortunate affair.

"I was mixed up in only three cases. Thomas was only mixed up in one, that relative to the lieutenants' examinations on March 28.

"I wouldn't have fallen then if Hill hadn't suggested it and if it hadn't been that my wife was ill and that I needed every dollar.

PAID $1,400 A YEAR.

"I was paid only $1,400 a year in the Civil Service Department. I am twenty-seven years of age. I was married two years ago and moved to Lynn from Revere. I served overseas in Battery A, 7th Trench Mortar. I had been employed at the Civil Service Commission for eight years.

"I don't believe the report that other police departments are involved for the simple reason that examiners did not know anybody in other towns and they could not take a chance with strangers. To my knowledge the cases are all in the Boston police department. As I said before, I had a hand in only three cases, but I don't know how many officers benefited by the papers which we supplied to Herbert Hill.

"Hill is the lad who got me started, and got Thomas, too. We went to night high school together and were neighbors in Revere. We also worked at the State House together.

"He used to come in just before the office closed at 5 o'clock and ask for a paper. He would have the money with him to pay for it. The first time Hill called, he asked for the questions drawn up for a non-competitive examination.

"I asked him what he wanted the paper for when it was a non-competitive examination. He said that the policeman wanted to make as high a mark as possible in order to boast about his rating to fellow officers. I fell for that argument and got one of the papers.

"I did not get over $20 or $25 for it. The last paper we took related to the lieutenants' examinations at the State House on March 28. Hill came in at the same time, five o'clock, on March 27. Thomas was in on this affair. He got one of the examination papers from the desk of Deputy Examiner Edwards, and passed it to me, and I passed it to Hill.

"We went into an ante-room, Hill and I, where Hill gave me $40. He also gave me $20 as Thomas' share, and I gave Thomas his money when we went out on the way home. They charged us with taking an examination paper for the sergeants' examination at Mechanics Building on March 28. But if a paper was taken then we did not take it.

It developed today that the police department had ascertained that Detective Sergeant Albert W. Carnes had approached Detective Sergeant William J. Carey, who is attached to the office of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, and told him he could procure in advance the questions which Carey would have to answer in the examination for lieutenancy the following day.

LODGE SCORES ARMY CUT AS OUTRAGE

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, speaking before the Greater Boston Chapter of the Military Order of the World War in Hotel Somerset declared that the proposed cutting down of the personnel of the American army to 115,000 is an autrage.

He said that such a force would be insufficient to perform ordinary police duties during peace time.

General Pershing shared with Senator Lodge the position as guest of honor.

SENATE TO MAKE FIGHT.

Besides the addresses of Senator Lodge and General Pershing, there were also speeches by Governor Channing Cox and by Major-General George H. Harries, U. S. A., retired, commander-in-chief of the National organizations of the Military Order of the World War, who, like Senator Lodge and General Pershing, told of the folly of unpreparedness.

"It is a curious thing," declared Senator Lodge, "that after all of our wars, Congress has always seemed to feel that there will never be another war! The Senate is sometimes criticized, but I can assure you that it is going to make a stand to keep our American army what it ought to be under peace conditions."

PERSHING'S ADDRESS.

General Pershing said:

"There is in the hearts of the American people an intensive love of peace which is nowhere stronger than in New England. However, human nature remains the same and experience teaches us that we can no more ignore the existence of envy, jealousy and hatred among the nations than among individuals, while the history of the rise and fall of peoples shows that no nation can long retain a place among the foremost if it is unwilling to take up arms in the defense of right and justice.

"As for the World War, I firmly believe that a substantial condition of preparedness of our land and naval forces, backed by an adequate merchant marine, would have kept us out of the war, and would have placed us in a position to have brought it to an early termination."

GARFIELD FUNERAL HELD IN LEXINGTON

POST LIST OF ONE-WAY STREETS IN GARAGES

Boston's street commissioners have accepted a suggestion from District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien that posters be printed immediately and distributed among garage and stable owners displaying the list of one-way streets in Boston, to avoid traffic violations. "There are many cases," said the district attorney, "caused through ignorance rather than disregard of the rule."

South End Recluse Ventured From Shop Only Once a Year

The dilapidated shack at No. 1274 Washington street, where Herbert W. Fiske died last week at the age of seventy-six after living the life of a recluse there for nearly half a century, was ransacked by representatives of his estate in a search for hidden treasure of $100,000.

The work is in charge of James J. Morrelli, agent for Judge Frank Leveroni, who is administrator of the estate.

Fiske conducted a thriving harness shop at that address, and is believed to have made a considerable sum of money. Throughout his life he practiced an economy that was almost miserliness, and is believed to have secreted a fortune somewhere in the ancient shop.

Fiske, it was learned, had but one suit of clothes during the last forty years.

He had spent an an average 15 cents a day for food, subsisting for the most on crackers and soup.

He slept on an ancient mattress which he had purchased from a second-hand man for 50 cents. His stove was broken down and rusty, ready to fall apart.

It is believed he ventured outside of the shop less than once a year during his forty years occupancy of it.

And yet an investigation has disclosed that his shop yielded him good profits. His bank accounts are small. Hence it is assumed that he cached a large sum of money, probably $100 000 at least, in the shack.

It will probably be a day or so before the search is completed.

BOSTON DOCTOR IS HELD AS WIFE SLAYER

Dr. Luigi Carbone, a former North End physician, is under arrest in Lapio, Province of Avellino, Italy, charged with murdering his wife and attempting to kill a younger woman.

The tragedy, according to dispatches reaching Boston, occurred in a cafe. Carbone entered the place and found his bride of one month with the daughter of the proprietor, Elena Fusco, in company with a man, seated at one of the tables.

He rushed to the table and drawing a razor, slashed his wife's throat. He then chased the young woman through the crowded dining room and fired several shots at her. Three of them took effect.

WORCESTER DISTRICT OF M. E. CHURCH GAINING

Report that the Worcester district of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church during the past year showed an increase in both membership and funds raised was made at the conference session in Malden today. Bishop John W. Hamilton said three things were putting Christian education in peril: Exclusion of the Bible from public schools; influence of destructive anarchistic ideas from foreigners, and the influence of wealth in denominational educational institutions.

SPRINGFIELD HAS BRANCH OF KU KLUX

The first branch of the Ku Klux Kan, secret order of the "invisible empire" in New England, is reported to have been formed in Springfield.

Organization of the klan was directed by a oBston man who claimed to be "F. S. aJckson." Several prominent Springfield business men are listed as members.

Formation of the branch was attended with great secrecy, owing to known opposition to the klan in the North. No regular headquarters will be maintained in Springfield.

ENDLESS CHAIN PRAISED BY VETERANS

Many Letters From Former Service Men Reveal Need of Bonus

Scores of letters in which the Boston American has been highly praised for the efforts it has made in behalf of the soldiers' bonus have been received by this newspaper. All the writers sent their signatures and those of three or more friends to the Endless Chain petition appearing on this page.

"You are doing great work for the bonus bill," writes an overseas veteran. "I have a wife and two children and I tell you the bonus would come in mighty handy. I gave up a good job to fight for this country and then got cheated out of what was coming to me."

Another veteran writes: "I am heartily in favor of a bonus or adjusted compensation for ex-service men, not because they served their country in a crisis, but because of the shameful manner in which they have been treated since the close of the war."

Many veterans are bitter over their inability to get employment or assistance from the government. A Providence ex-service man writes: "Many veterans, unable to get work, have been forced to join the army in order to get something to eat. Many people regard ex-service men as nothing but a lot of tramps. I went overseas while under age to fight for this country, but I will never wear a uniform again."

HEARS A "GURGLE OF ORGANIZED APPETITE"

New York, April 7 (By International News Service).—William H. Anderson, State president of the Anti-Saloon League, today branded as "the gurgle of an organized appetite" the formation of a New York division of the association against the prohibition amendment. "This organization," continued Mr. Anderson," demands personal liberty for every one except the prohibitionists, who happen to be in a large majority in this country."

PROVIDENCE VICTIMS SUE PONZI TRUSTEES

Augustine H. Downing of Providence filed suit in Suffolk Superior Court today asking that the Ponzi trustees be ordered to pay him $11,-345, which he claims thirty-one residents of Providence invested in Ponzi's get-rich-quick scheme. He says these claims have been assigned to him, and that he is entitled to full payment because of the false representations made at the time of the investment and the fact that Ponzi was then bankrupt.

3 MAYORS APPEAL TO COX FOR "L" TO HELP

Mayors Kimball of Malden, Harrison of Everett and Noone of Revere, accompanied by former Mayor Walsworth of Revere, today conferred with Governor Cox, they sought his aid in their project for having the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway taken over and operated by the Boston Elevated. Legislation providing this transfer, they told the Governor, is necessary if their respective municipalities are to get adequate service.

HOUSE EFFORTS RENEWED FOR COAL PARLEY

Strike Leader Brophy Calls For Federal Commission to Bring Peace

Washington, April 7 (By International News Service).—Heartened by Attorney-General Daugherty's assurance that participants in any joint conference signed to fix a new wage and end the coal strike would not be prosecuted. The House Committee today renewed its efforts to bring together the operators and striking miners.

Remedy for the "strike diseased" coal industry lies in the creation of a temporary federal commission from which should result a permanent fact-finding commission with supervisory powers, John Brophy, one of the miners' leaders, testified before the House Labor Committee today.

Brophy, who is president of district No. 2, embracing the mine region of Central Pennsylvania, said such a commission would compel reorganization of the coal industry, eliminate recurrent strikes and be a general benefit to the public.

"If a man marries his widow's sister's daughter what is his relationship to her?"

"He can't do it."

EDISON CO. IN COMBINE TO BALK PROBE

Big Light Firms Cover Up for Each Other, American's Attorney Shows

How the big electric corporations of the country work in combination to protect each other from investigations which might disclose their profits and methods of doing business was exposed by Attorney Grenville S. MacFarland, counsel for the Boston American, in the joint case brought by the city of Bo on and the Boston American to force down the prices of electricity in Greater Boston.

Mr. MacFarland announced at the hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities that inquiries about rates, the cost of doing business, the profits and the character of the territory served had been sent to 200 companies in other sections of the country and in Canada.

The purpose of this inquiry was to determine, Mr. MacFarland said, why and how those companies are able to sell electricity at much lower rates than are charged to the 135,000 patrons of the Edison.

Turning to Richard S. Hale, the Edison superintendent of research, Mr. MacFarland suddenly asked him:

"These companies have been in correspondence with you?"

"Yes," admitted Mr. Hale, "we got letters from them saying you were asking questions and would it be all right to answer."

"What did do you tell them?"

"I told them it would be all right to answer."

"Does that account for the fact that we have received answers from but half a dozen of them?"

Mr. Hale said he did not know.

"I know you have got answers," interrupted Attorney F. Manley Ives of the Edison, "because I have a copy of one of them."

"That is interesting," said Mr. MacFarland. "Now perhaps you would like to know also that every publicly-owned company to which we addressed an inquiry has returned a complete answer."

Mr. MacFarland denounced the whole rate structure of the Edison as "mere camouflage." He asserted that the Edison has neither a just nor a scientific system of charging its rates to the customers, but that it frames up a new explanation of its rate theories every time it is driven into a corner.

3 FIREMEN HURT IN HOT-AIR EXPLOSION

Three firemen received painful burns while fighting a fire in a house, occupied by Mrs. Emma A. Almy and family on Highland avenue, Salem.

Lieutenant Edward W. Flynn was burned about the neck and ears and on the right hand when a hot-air explosion blew burning embers over his body. He was taken to the Salem Hospital.

The same blast caused injury to Timothy Bagley and John Devitt, members of Engine 1 Company.

CAMBRIDGE SLAYER SENTENCED TO DEATH

Sentence of death was passed on Rocco Sciechitani for the murder of Patrolman Thomas J. Riley of Cambridge in November, 1921, by Judge Brown in East Cambridge Court. Before sentencing the prisoner Judge Brown asked if he wished to make a statement. He replied: "The only thing I can say is that I am innocent. He struck me first."

The plea, it is understood, will be presented on behalf of Pope Pius by the Spanish delegation.

HARVARD MAN CAN LIVE ON $800 A YEAR

No Sympathy Here for Syracuse Student Who Thinks $5,000 Too Small

Pity the plight of Herbert Biel, Syracuse University student.

Biel declared he cannot put himself through college on a paltry $5,000 a year. His guardian has petitioned to have his income increased so that he may complete his education.

At Harvard, which is considered a moderately expensive place, as universities go, the authorities have made estimates of the expenses necessary for a year's matriculation there.

Frederick L. Allen, secretary of the corporation, said today that the minimum on which a student may spend a year at Harvard is about $800.

This, of course, is assuming that he has no scholarship, and that he is not working his way.

For $1,500, a student can spend a year at Harvard in very comfortable style, said Allen. On $2,000, an undergraduate can have just about the best that Cambridge affords.

Furthermore, it will be remembered that a questionnaire circulated among college girls recently disclosed that most of them would be willing to marry a man whose income is only $2,500.

Possibly, however, conditions are different at Syracuse. At any rate, the court allowed Biel to draw an extra thousand from his estate yearly.

Expenses at Harvard may be divided, roughly, as follows:

Tuition, $250; board, anywhere from $300 to $400; room rent, $50 to $500. Books and laboratory fees would probably reach from $25 to $50. Clothes, travelling expenses and incidentals vary in individual cases.

Possibly "Kid" Wedge, the Arizona ex-pugilist, who landed in Cambridge to enter Harvard with approximately $10 in his pockets, might be able to give Biel a few tips on ways and means of cutting down his budget.

The general expression of opinion among undergraduates at Harvard would seem to be something like this:

"Five thousand dollars a year? You could buy the place for less."

DESTROYER HELPLESS FROM BOILER MISHAPS

Portsmouth, Va., April 7.—Blowing out of boiler tubes until three boilers and her starboard condenser were out of commission forced Lieutenant McReynolds, commanding the destroyer Gregory, to rig jury sails on the forward signal mast to keep the vessel under rudder control off Charleston, S. C., until taken in tow by the destroyer Maddox. The Gregory has arrived here. An investigation is expected.

PEACE PARLEY HELD IN STRIKE AT LAWRENCE

2 Hurt at Mills When Workers Are Attacked; One Beaten, Another Stabbed

Lawrence, April 7.—Mill owners and strike leaders appeared today before the committee of seven clergymen appointed earlier in the week by Mayor Daniel W. Mahoney to arrange a joint conference to reach a settlement.

Strike leaders early finished presentation of their side of the case. They were represented by Francis Gorman, in charge of the strike for the United Textile Workers, George Brear, treasurer of the United Textile Workers' Strike Committee, and by Michael Guilfoyle, president of the Lawrence Textile Council.

Representing the mill men were Edwin Farnham Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills, John Alexander, agent for the Katama Mills; William A. Pediar, agent for the Acadia Mills, and Charles E. Collins, agent for the Pemberton Mills.

Two men were assaulted and brutally beaten by strikers, and employes of the Pacific Mill Print Works were stoned by pickets at the opening of the mills today.

The injured men are:

Vincenzo Larco of No. 9 Lincoln court, father of five children. Head cut and beaten.

The police later arrested George Aspanos, thirty-eight years old, of Valley street, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. In court Aspanos pleaded not guilty and the case against him was continued until Monday.

According to the police, a portion of Larco's right ear was bitten off during the scuffle.

At the Lawrence General Hospital, where he was taken to have his injuries dressed, Larco told a pathetic story. He said he had hated to appear disloyal to his mates when they went on strike, but the needs of his family and the expected arrival today of the stork with a sixth child forced him to keep at work.

As he was going to the Pacific Mill print works, where he is employed in the soaping room, he was attacked by four men, who kicked and beat him, and finally struck him over the head with a length of iron pipe, cutting a four-inch gash in the scalp. He explained that he was without money and that there was but little food in the house for the children.

No Federal Inquiry in Textile Strike Planned

Washington, April 7.—The government will not undertake an investigation of the New England textile strike, it was learned today in official quarters. Requests received by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts and New England Congressmen from striking textile workers that the government institute such an investigation have been referred to the Department of Labor.

R. I. Picket Ruling Test Cases Put Off

Providence, April 7.—Harry Parsons Cross, attorney for the mill owners in the recent proceedings before the Board of Mediation and Conciliation, appeared as prosecutor in Coventry Court today, when the cases against Thomas E. Harrop, chairman of the Pawtuxet Valley strike committee, and John F. Flanagan, chairman of the Crompton strike committee, were called for trial.

After a short conference with Judge Felix Hebert, the cases were continued for two weeks. Mr. Harrop, who is vice commander of West Warwick Post, American Legion, and Mr. Flanagan submitted themselves to arrest to test the ruling of Deputy Sheriff Whitman, that no more than three persons would be allowed to picket any mill.

OFFERS ROSE COGHLAN A HOME IN CALIFORNIA

Alameda, Cal., April 7.—Rose Coghlan, adored comedy star of two decades ago, who feared that "nobody in the world wants me" because of the tragic role of penury that fate recently has cast for her, may know now that there is a home where she is wanted, and wanted eagerly, in this city on the east shore of San Francisco Bay. This was the message that Mrs. Tom Dolphin, No. 2124 Clement avenue, Alameda, sent to Miss Coghlan today. "Please tell Miss Coghlan that she is wanted right here," said Mrs. Dolphin. "There is a big home here, to which she is welcome, and a car we'd like to take her riding in; and she needn't sell her costumes. We want her to come right away."

MILK DRIVERS TO TAKE STRIKE VOTE

A vote on the question of striking to enforce their demands that the agreement with dealers continue for a year will be taken by members of Milk Wagon Drivers' Union, No. 380, at a meeting tomorrow night. A ballot will also be taken on the question of the nine-hour day proposal of the employers instead of the present eight-hour day of the drivers.

EDWARD E. SHANNON, BUSINESS MAN, DIES

Shannon had been fighting a losing battle against ill health for more than a year. [illegible] disease was given as the immediate cause of his death.

REDS READY TO FIGHT AGAIN, DECLARES LENINE

Moscow, April 7.—Nicolai Lenine in a speech at the close of the eleventh Communist Congress said: "Our party all these years has valiantly fought its enemies and if necessary the party will again enter the battle. The Communist party is not out of date, notwithstanding foreign opinion to the contrary."

HEARS MUSIC AS SHE DOES FANCY WORK

Mrs. James Jackson, wife of State treasurer, has high praise for radiophone set to be given away to Boston American readers after listening to concert.

WOMEN ENJOY RADIOPHONE CONCERT

State Treasurer's Wife and Comedy Star Express Surprise at Results

"Wonderful! It's just like being in the same room with the musicians."

So exclaimed both Mrs. James Jackson, wife of the State treasurer, and Miss Lynn Fontanne, pretty star of "Dulcy," playing at the Hollis Theatre, after listening to a wireless concert by means of one of the Victor supersensitive radiophone receiving sets, which are to be given away to its readers by the Boston American.

Have not heard about the plan? Turn over to page sixteen of this paper and you'll find the details of the simple scheme outlined in full there.

The sets are to be presented to readers of this paper free.

Miss Fontanne, like many who have heard a concert over a radiophone was dubious. She could not see how "music" could come out of the neat little mahogany cabinet with numbered dials and the queer "juggums."

"HEARING IS BELIEVING."

But when she adjusted the phones against her ears, and the first strains of music being played miles away came to her, her face positively beamed with pleased surprise, and she gave utterance to the remark quoted above.

"I have always longed for something amusing and diverting to listen to while I am doing fancy work," said Mrs. Jackson, as the working of the set was demonstrated, "and now I have found it."

Both Mrs. Jackson and Miss Fontanne expressed surprise at the clearness with which the music was rendered over the Victor phone. This is a surprise, too, which is coming to everyone who has not yet listened to a good radiophone receiver.

NO RASPING SOUND.

Both the ordinary telephone and the phonograph have a slight rasping sound which is continuous and which dulls even the brightest of music. This is so serious a factor that if you should speak a series of disjointed words into a telephone, the person on the other end would probably not understand half of them.

The radiophone, however, is free from this defect under ordinary conditions. This means that music is transmitted by wireless with all its original purity of sound, so that a radiophone listener cannot help but wonder whether he is not in the same room with the musician.

SOCIETY GIRLS AID BELLEAU MEMORIAL

Raise Funds to Rebuild French Town in Honor of U. S. Soldiers

A large corps of society women, including a number of girls who served overseas with ambulance and Red Cross units, began active operations in all Boston hotels and banks today in the drive for money to rebuild the town of Belleau, France where 2,000 American soldiers of the Second and Twenty-sixth divisions were killed in action.

A fund of $300,000 is being raised throughout the country for the work, which is to be a memorial to the American doughboys. The quota assigned to Massachusetts is $20,000. Today and tomorrow are the days in which this is to be raised.

The women who are conducting booths in the hotels and banks are under the direction of Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons, a member of the executive committee of the drive. Each booth will sell membership cards in the Belleau Memorial, prices to range from $1 upwards, depending on the generosity of the subscriber.

Miss Elizabeth Morse, Mrs. Curtis Guild and others are in charge of the booth at the Copley-Plaza. At the Essex a number of members of the Overseas League, in uniform, under their president, Miss Sybil Richards, are selling subscriptions.

NEW YORK AUTHOR TO WED CONCERT SINGER

A romance between Thomas Grant Springer, noted New York author and dramatic critic, and Madame Marione, well known concert singer, has resulted in the filing of marriage intentions at Wellesley. The couple secured a waiver of the five-day law and will be married Monday at Rockridge Hall Inn. Madame Marione is president of the New York State Federation of Music Clubs. The couple have been visiting friends in Wellesley. Both are well known in musical and literary circles.

BEACH BOAT CAPTAIN DROPS DEAD OFF LADDER

"If this ladder doesn't hold my weight until I paint the roof of the house, my wife will have to finish the job," remarked Walter Rathburn, 40 years old, a captain on the Nantasket Steamboat lines. With this statement, Rathburn threw up his hands, dropped a pail of paint and fell to the ground dead, a victim of heart failure. He had been talking with Captain Nickerson, another officer on the Nantasket line, while painting his home at Nantasket.

MOTHER FAINTS AS 'SCOTTY'S' BODY ARRIVES

Remains of Newsboy Hero Now Lie in State in Brookline Town Hall

The body of Private Albert E. Scott, beter known to his friends as "Scotty," former Brookline newsboy who was slain on the battlefield in France after killing single-handed thirty Germans, lies in state at the Brookline Town Hall.

Draped in flags, the casket containing the body of the hero newsboy, killed in action while guarding a crossroad near Epieds, on July 23, 1918, arrived at the South Station last evening.

Among the mourners who were there were his mother, Mrs. Ethel L. Scott, Edward L. Fontaine, of No. 28 Belvoir road, Milton, "Scotty's" uncle, a delegation from Brookline Post of the American Legion, members of Stephen Rutledge Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, members of H Company, 101st Infantry and a host of friends.

Mrs. Scott fell in faint when the guard of honor passed by with the hero's remains. It was only with difficulty that friends and relatives managed to console her. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury, on Sunday afternoon.

Topcoats Right for Now And Right Prices

Just at this time, women should wear topcoats, and Jays Little Shop has put forth much effort in having just the right coats made. Their points of excellence begin in the fine materials, foreign and American, and add to these, hand and man-tailoring and the finish which stamps a garment better than the average best; over and above all, are the lines which quietly claim superiority. Whether these topcoats are of camel's-hair, checked or striped tweed, plain covert or other weaves, the quality shows, and it goes straight through to the lining, inclusive.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON HUB SOCIETY

Balloon Dance Will Be Feature of Vincent Club Show

By BETTY ALDEN.

"THREE steps to your left, and four to your right—now altogether, please!"—that is the sweet refrain which a goodly portion of the Vincent Club members are hearing even in their sleep these busy days. But the daily rehearsals being held at the Copley must go on, for the fair "Vincentites" are determined to show Bostonians the "best ever," when they present the clever musical comedy, "Now and Then," written by two talented members, Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Jr. (Olivia Lowell), and Miss Mary Burr, the last week of the month.

And as usual, dances will play a very prominent part in "Now and Then," as they have in the Vincent shows of former years. One of these all-important terpsichorean numbers is "The Baloon," and to judge by the coterie of attractive girls taking part in it, this will be one of the pleasantest features. Prominent in the dance will be Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Busk (Harriet Fessenden) and Miss Miriam Fenno, with a group of the following debutantes: The Misses Mary Hall, Elinor Sutton, Katherine Coolidge, Elizabeth Cole and Margaret Houghton, who is making quite a name for herself these days for her prowess at tennis.

Speaking of Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Busk, one of the notable box parties at the performance of "Why Not" given last Friday night at the Opera House was the party of which Mrs. Busk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sewall H. Fessenden of Chestnut Hill, were the hosts. The former Harriet Fessenden, who was one of the most popular girls of her year, made a charming picture with her taffeta gown and headband of green. She was greeted heartily from all sides on Friday evening, for last Winter she and her husband were not in Boston. Her sister, Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., who possesses all the girlish charm of her Caroline Fessenden days, was likewise greeted by a host of friends. The other two daughters of the house, the Misses Rose and Louise Fessenden were also there of course. In fact, all four sisters were actively connected with the success of "Why Not?" "Ollie" Ames, Mrs. Busk and Rose Fessenden were in charge of the cabaret and entre'act, while Louise Fessenden, together with Anna Thorndike, Frances Clark and Agnes Means, made up the corps of efficient head ushers.

There is quite a bit of interest among members of the younger set in the forthcoming marriage if Miss Katherine Coolidge, one of the fellow-dancers with Mrs. Busk in "The Baloon." Katherine Coolidge had the distinction of being the first debutante this year to nounce her engagement, and now, the "debbies" are all "perfectly thrilled"—as they say—because the date of her wedding has been set for June 17. The lucky [illegible] is Geoffrey Story Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brinton Smith of Philadelphia, who will receive his sheepskin from Harvard this June. Katherine, whose parents are the William H. Coolidges of Beacon street and "Blyman Farm" on the North Shore, has taken a leading part in the hundred and one festivities which made the past season such a merry one for the "just-out" contingent.

After a long season at her beautiful Palm Beach villa, Mrs. Charles L. Harding is expected to return to her home in Dedham this evening.

On her way North, Mrs. Harding, who was among the most prominent hostesses during her sojourn at the Florida resort, stopped off in New York for a visit of several days. During her stay in Gotham, where the Hardings have a host of friends, both Mrs. Harding and her husband were the guests of Lord and Lady Auckland at one of the many supper parties given on Wednesday evening at the Ambassador in connection with the weekly dance of the Midnight Club. In the same company with the Hardings were the Lyttleton Foxes, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hyatt Vallance and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Procter.

MISS MARY HALL

Miss Hall will take part in the Vincent Club's show, "Now and Then" the last week in April. She is the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Linzee Hall, and is helping today and tomorrow at the "trash and treasure" sale in aid of the Girl Scouts at Horticultural Hall.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT R. Whittier of No. 16 Commonwealth avenue have joined the Boston colony at Hot Springs, one of the popular Winter and Spring resorts of the South.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson Allen of Marlboro street are at present visiting in New York, where they are guests at the Hotel Lorraine.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Sumner Wells (Esther Slater), who are sojourning at White Sulphur Springs, recently had as their dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. William S. Reyburn of Washington. Mr. Wells recently resigned his position with the diplomatic corps.

Mr. and Mrs. James Vail Converse (Thelma Morgan) gave a tea on Wednesday afternoon at their home in New York on West Fifty-first street in honor of Mrs. Converse's sister, Miss Gloria Morgan. Their guests included Lord and Lady Auckland, Mrs. George Gould, Jr., Frank V. Storrs and Mrs. Alfred N. Beadleston. Young Converse, whose marriage to Miss Morgan, daughter of the Harry Hays Morgans, took place several months ago, is a nephew of the Frederick Converses of Boston, and a cousin of Virginia Converse and Mrs. Junius Spencer Morgan, Jr. (Louis Converse), who has just sailed for England with her husband.

WOULD PLACE TAX OF $100 ON POODLE DOGS

New York, April 7.—(International News Service)—"I would put a tax of $100 on every pug-nosed poodle dog which society women carry around in the place of children, and turn the money over to poor mothers, who are struggling to rear their children," declared Rev. Dr. Frank Norris, the "Texas Tornado," at the Calvary Baptist Church, where he is holding nightly revival services. "The whole welfare of human society rests on the sanctity of the marriage relation," said Dr. Norris.

"When I was a boy, divorce, except on scriptural grounds, was considered a disgrace. Now it is passport to high society."

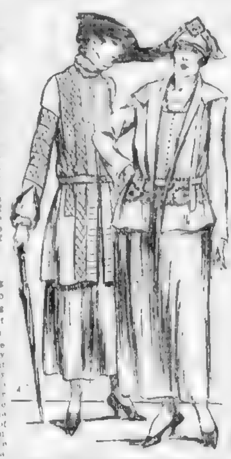
—Fresh From Paris—
Latest From Marie Suzanne



Paris, [illegible]

THE coat and dress tailleur seems to have supplanted the dress and cape mode of the very early Spring in a fair degree. [illegible] at the [illegible] of dark green [illegible] presents a graceful [illegible] skirted coat trimmed with bands of [illegible] embroidery [illegible] at different angles. The standing [illegible] of [illegible] and the queerly [illegible] that reveal inner sleeves of the fur are further notes of interest. The bodice of the frock is of crepe in a matching shade of green and similar stitchery is used to trim it.

THE short flaring type of jacket so much used this Spring is inevitably touched at some point with embroidery—dark if the fabric is light, and gay if it is sombre. The point of contact is generally in the vicinity of the waistline and may either be used with or take the place of a girdle. The tailleur at the right of beige twill takes [illegible] embroidery [illegible]—in the gay [illegible] that is prevalent [illegible] Paris. Slender strips of the twill [illegible] the collar descend the coat and the belt is passed through [illegible].

STOREMEN DEFY $14 MINIMUM FOR WOMEN

Retail Dealers Outside Boston Think Week's Pay Too High for Trained Workers

Protesting that the decision to establish $14 a week as the minimum wage for experienced female employes in retail stores is unfair to the retail dealers outside of Boston, Secretary Winslow W[illegible] of the Massachusetts Retail Merchants Association today informed the Minimum Wage Commission that the merchants of one big Massachusetts city have decided to defy the Commission's decree.

MILTON GIRL SETS HOT SPRINGS FASHION

"SNOW USE, You Can't Keep a Golf Nut Down!" Golf bugs sojourning at a snow-crested California mountain resort had to have their game, so they used black rough balls in the snow.

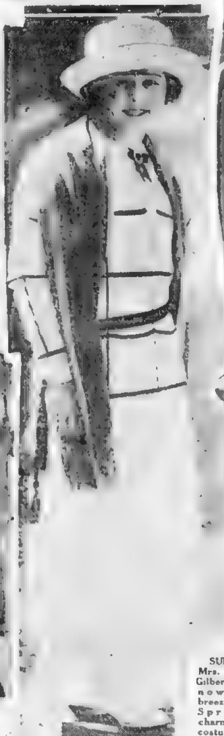
MORE POWER TO IT! Ask dad if he remembers when this electric auto was a sensation—now the oldest vehicle of its kind in the country. It was one of the features at the 1922 Electric Show, New York. Built in 1882 by Leon Mendel of N. Y. Still runs. [illegible]

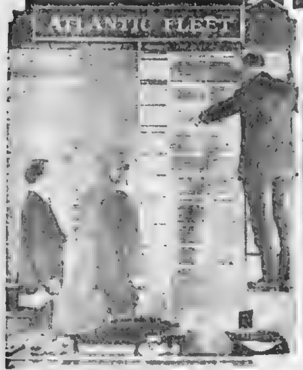
SERVICE STAR MOTHERS BECOME STAR SALES FOLK! The Service Star Legion bazaar at the Hotel Vendome was successful in every particular and a tidy sum was realized from the sales. Miss Gertrude Plimpton, left, and Mrs. Lillian Carpenter were among the active workers in behalf of the affair.



IN MUFTI! General Gregory Semenoff, Russian Cossack leader of the White Army, as he appeared in Washington on his tour of the United States. Many atrocities were charged to his soldiers during the war.

"WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT?" Vienna (in the past, at least) had the most scientific police organization in the world. The appointment of women night guards in Vienna is a new departure. The dog accompanies her on her patrol. [illegible]

THUMBS DOWN! Boston authorities say that 10 per cent. of children under three suck their thumbs—thus misaligning their teeth and changing face contour. A Chicago man has invented this anti-thumb sucking ring to help baby help himself.



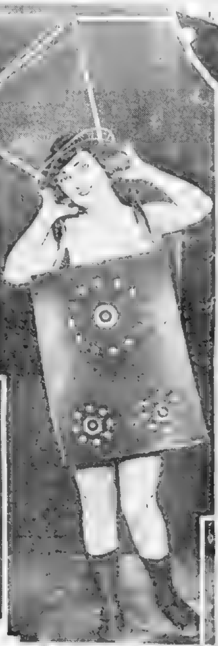
HOW THE NAVY KEEPS TRACK OF ITS SHIPS! Capt. Kalfus is showing Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and Admiral Cole what ships are to be scrapped and what ships are to be kept under the new disarmament agreement. Taken in the operating room of the Navy Department.

"ARE YOU A MASON?" It doesn't make any difference to Peggy Donovan, pretty Boston girl, 'cause all orders look alike to her when she wears her new emblem garter. Of course emblems don't grow on trees, but, gosh, most girls have lots of gen'lman friends.

SUN KIST! Mrs. Charles T. Gilbert of Milton, now enjoying breezes of Hot Springs. Her charming sport costume consists of a knitted silk sweater, white silk skirt and hat of white straw. (International News Reel).

"IF WINTER COMES" THE WOMEN, AS USUAL, BEAR THE BURDEN! Analysts and civic experts are nearly all agreed that, with the exception of her transportation system, Germany has recovered much of her pre-war efficiency and stability. Bad transportation has hit the inhabitants of the outlying districts a hard blow. Fuel is difficult to obtain for this reason. This photograph shows poor German women digging for possible fuel around old mine shafts and dumps. (Wide World)

PIN-HEAD STUFF! A. C. Habicht, talented Washington engraver, who has achieved the unusual distinction of engraving the United States Capitol on the head of a pin. Through a microscope the smallest detail, even to window and statue, can be seen. (Underwood.)



MAYBE SHE'S CALLING YOU! Anyway, Miss Beatrice Manners, as "The Radio Girl," will be one of the eye-arresting cuties at the Quartz Arts Ball, tomorrow night at Tammany Hall, New York. Notables of the brush and stage will be present. (International News Reel)

EGYPT HAS ITS SUFFRAGISTS, TOO! One of the most interesting photographs to come out of Egypt in many months, showing veiled women leaders of the suffragist movement displaying a banner calling for political equality for the benefit of Lord Allenby on the streets of Cairo. Allenby, who was named to investigate conditions in the country, recently visited the new King Fuad of Egypt. (International News Reel)

Where Style Comes From

CORRECT style in men's clothes is not established by arbitrary decree of any one man or class of men. It is established by public opinion. It expresses the trend of men's minds. Or, more properly, anticipates that trend.

It's no easy matter to forecast accurately what men will prefer to wear six to nine months in advance. It calls for long experience, eternal vigilance, painstaking investigation and a finger constantly on the pulse of popular demand.

It is due to such methods, and to being a national rather than a local institution, that The House of Kuppenheimer is so consistently right on men's styles and so consistently first with innovations which later sweep the country from coast to coast.

Kuppenheimer Suits

Nothing provincial about these styles. They're American---correct everywhere you go---reflecting the consensus of opinion of America's most careful dressers. Tailored from the choicest fabrics in the most attractive patterns and with an abundance of fine hand work, they fit, look and wear like a lot more money than we're selling them for.

Says Most Girls Can Keep a Secret, But They Have to Get Four or Five Others to Help Them

Gossip is a terrible thing. It has broken up more homes than marriage.

Most women like double chins. They can keep one of them going all the time.

It's a proven fact that women like to talk about their neighbors. You never hear of a woman admiring a hermit.

They love scandal. They've got to have it, even if they have to make it up.

[illegible]

Some women talk about you behind your back. It isn't their fault if you don't turn around.

[illegible]

Most girls can keep a secret, but they have to get four or five others to help them.

[illegible]

[illegible]

The minute you go into Mrs. Brown's house the first thing she says is, "Do you know—have you heard—and—did you hear?"

Instead of saying [illegible]

Of course [illegible] want to [illegible] as long as it doesn't get too notorious.

You can't expect a woman to get everything right the first time, especially when she's making it up as she goes along.

VACUUM TUBE INCREASES RADIOPHONE'S EFFICIENCY

By A. B. HOAG.

The operation of a vacuum tube set such as was described in Thursday's paper is somewhat more complicated than the operation of a simple crystal detector set, but the [illegible] justify the somewhat increased complexity.

In the first place a vacuum tube is far more efficient than a crystal detector although it serves much the same purpose, that of converting radio-frequent alternating current [illegible] direct current.

The principle on which these tubes work is based on the fact that heated metals throw off electrons [illegible]

The third coil in the circuit is the regenerative element. By means of inductance, it increases the flow of current in the second coil. That is to say, it increases that part of the current which is needed to operate the phones.

A.—An aerial with four wires is more effective than one with single wire, but only slightly more. I do not consider a fifty-foot aerial long enough, whether it is one or four wires. A single aerial 100 feet long [illegible] effective than a four-[illegible] fifty feet long.

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Big Danger Point of American League Race Is That the Bambino May Not Last

By HUGH FULLERTON

This is a sad [illegible] story, and [illegible] hardest [illegible] of all the [illegible]. Also [illegible] of the most important [illegible] of the study of team strength [illegible] we know [illegible] player [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the coming season.

Ball players [illegible] wear out gradually. More of them are like the one horse shay and go to pieces all in a day. We can figure on wear and tear and gradual depreciation, but this sudden breakdown is hurtful to the dope.

It is a sad thing to write about fellows you have known and admired for years [illegible]. Few of them [illegible] that they either are going back or are liable to go back. Yet in this class in the major leagues we find more ball players than in any other. There are more veterans who are approaching to breaking point, or whose arms or legs are weakening and liable to break.

When a player is important enough to be figured as a possible [illegible] of [illegible] he should consider it a compliment to be considered from this viewpoint, but as a [illegible] though they will confess at any time that they are liable to go any day.

In this article we want to study how much wear and tear has affected the teams and also the men who are liable to slip.

The list is surprisingly large this season. They are a tremendous number of veterans who are reaching the end of the baseball string, men young in years [illegible] old according to baseball standards.

In the American League conditions are quite as perilous. New York has Frank Baker, who is about done, excepting for spasmodic reaction; Bullet Bush, who may crack at any time. Most of the others have youth. The big danger point, of course, is Ruth. It will surprise me if the Babe lasts out this season. In fact, it was a surprise that he lasted out last year.

True, with his strength he ought to last five years, but with his manner of going he is liable to go out any moment. We are figuring that he will play 120 games this season, and consider that a high chance.

Washington faces the slump of Walter Johnson, who, like Alexander, has gone far back. [illegible] Milan and Peck [illegible]. Philadelphia has plenty of young material with Johnston, the passe veteran, filling in as a savior at first. Boston has five [illegible] past prime [illegible] players—Burns, Pratt, Ruel, Walters and Thormahlen. Chicago has even greater chances of a [illegible] strength with Eddie Collins long overdue but still going strong, Johnson, Strunk, Hooper and Red Faber all on sufferance. St. Louis has Austin who is far past due, Kopp who seems about done, and several others who are no Spring chickens, including Johnny Tobin and Josh Billings. Detroit has Young, Cobb and Bassler who are far past the average age of players, and Cleveland has M[illegible] Innis, Wood, Graney, [illegible], Morton and Sothoron.

Babe Says Home Run Record Not in Danger

By Universal Service.

Norfolk, April 7.—Babe Ruth does not expect to tie, let alone beat his record of fifty nine home runs of last season.

The Bambino says so declaring Commissioner Landis' six weeks' sentence for barn storming last Fall dating from April 12, the opening day, makes the task just about hopeless.

He is in a batting slump.

NEW CHESTNUT HILL GOLF COURSE ALL READY

By FRED G. THAYER.

B. S. Permar, club secretary and chairman of the green committee at Chestnut Hill, has been untiring in bringing about the changes on this nine-hole course in such a short time, and when the season opens on April 19 club members will realize what interesting transformations have been made.

Certain holes on this stretch of land have been recognized for some time as unsatisfactory to the committee and the dreams of members are now going to [illegible].

The new par will be [illegible] 36, but the course will [illegible] hard upon which to score as was the old nine holes in 36.

The distances and par of each hole under the new plans are:

Hole	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	—Out
Par	3	4	4	4	4	4	5	3	4	35

Distance—[illegible] 201 [illegible] 33[illegible] 48[illegible] 150 [illegible] yards.

The first tee will be to the [illegible] of the club house, as formerly [illegible] the green will remain the same. The second tee is set back about twenty yards and will make the [illegible] the tee as stiff an up-hill drive to the green as one would want, 260 yards.

The third tee will remain [illegible] the green has been [illegible] large green has been [illegible] the bottom of the [illegible] the brook, formerly [illegible] the fourth [illegible] this stream [illegible] as a natural hazard and compelling a ball to be back spinned to the green.

The second shot here will be dangerous at any angle but the long tee shot, down the centre of this fair way carefully guarded at the sides with trees, will receive its reward. There will be more fives and sixes here than fours. This is a right [illegible] low hole.

Old Fourth Green Will Be Retained as the New Fifth

The old tee will not be used. The old fourth green will be retained as the new fifth being played from the old sixth tee, beyond the old fifth green now the new fourth [illegible]. The green, as will be [illegible], slopes away from the old fourth tee and also to the [illegible].

[illegible] the green will be [illegible] and will make a better surface upon which to pitch. Perhaps a bit of grading could be done here which would improve the hole more. Traps in back will stop the strong approach.

The old fifth tee is the new fourth and the former elbow of this hole has been taken out by cutting away the woods 1[illegible] odd feet, permitting play direct for the line of play to the green. The hole will continue its side-hill character. The new distance is a bit less perhaps than the old.

The sixth hole is the old seventh from the elevated tee to the green in front of the barn, guarded by the two proverbial trees. [illegible] this barn will be carried [illegible] to the corner of Reservoir Road and Boylston street, near where the present fifth tee is located. This [illegible]

FORTY FRAMES OF FISTIC FIREWORKS FOR FANEUIL FANS

RICH PURSES HUNG UP FOR BANTAM BATTLERS IN NEAR TITLE BOUTS

A LITTLE DOPE FOR THE BALCONY BOYS

By GILL

Did you string along with Conway last Tuesday night and get in on that 2-to-1 and 10-to-6 stuff?

Pretty soft, eh, fellers?

Well, here's another chance to get some more easy pickings—play 'em alone or parlay the bunch.

All hands will be aboard tonight at Mechanics, and if you're in right, it's all peaches and cream.

Take a look at Conway's picks and then shovel it in.

You can't go wrong—just ask the boys who cleaned up on Shade—they are all on, hook, line and sinker.

It looks like a big night.

By JACK CONWAY.

Eight stout hearted bantamweights!

Forty rounds of bang-up fighting!

That's the offering for the Faneuil A. C.'s big show at Mechanics Building tonight. It is the most impressive all-star booking ever made by a Boston club and is expected to play to a capacity crowd.

John Mahony says tonight's show will cost $11,000. This makes it one of the most expensive attractions ever booked by a Boston club. But as the fans always turn out for high class shows it is believed that the Faneuil club will reap a snug financial harvest despite its heavy risk.

Montreal and White in the Feature Battle

Every all-star show has to have a feature battle. In this particular case Young Montreal of Providence and Jabez White, Albany puncher, are the young men who top the card.

Montreal is one of the game's best bantamweights. He trounced

THE PROMOTERS LET GO

Pete Herman twice last year in matches staged in this city. He has also smashed his way to victories over most of the other fast steppers in his boxing class. He recently proved to Boston fans he is as good as ever when he jabbed and jolted his way to a decision over Danny Edwards.

White, an aggressive, hard hitting youth, will cause Montreal plenty of trouble. The Albany socker [illegible] a few years back and scrambled through twelve rounds to a draw with Joe Lynch. All he asks is one healthy wallop at Montreal.

Danny Edwards to Clash With Roy Moore

Danny Edwards of Portland, Oregon, whose [illegible] call him the new George Dixon, will go forth to battle with [illegible]. Those fans who [illegible] Edwards in any of his Boston starts are anxious to hear the whizz of his radio punches tonight. Those persons who have not yet had the opportunity to see the little colored sensation in action are eager to see if he is really another George Dixon.

Moore will give Edwards a rugged argument. At Worcester recently, Moore put the well known skids under Young Montreal. He has shown here with Abe Friedman and always gave the fans plenty of action.

Abe Atteil Goldstein to Oppose Sheppard

Abe Attell Goldstein—a very good fighting [illegible] the world [illegible]. He'll be on the [illegible] Johnny Sheppard of [illegible]. Goldstein has had more ring experience than Sheppard [illegible] ter is a rugged, two-handed youth and is of the opinion he will gain the decision.

Paddy Owens to Test Ability of Miller

Joey Miller of California, who has engaged in a couple of local starts, will whirl forth to battle with Paddy Owens of Cambridge. Owens has been boxing well of late and will give the youth from the Golden West a real test.

Newport Johnny Brown and Mike Castle of Lawrence are billed to furnish the fireworks in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Naumkeag A. A. of Salem tonight. Both youths are rugged punchers and should furnish a lively mill. The boys have agreed to weigh in at 127 pounds at 5 o'clock.

Tippey Lowery of Melden and Billy Nelson of Brockton are booked to clash in the semi-final of eight frames. Eddie Walsh of Salem and Larry Cross of Lynn will box six sessions. Jimmy Smith of Brockton and Soldier Carman of [illegible] will battle six sessions, as will [illegible] Mahoney of Stoneham and Charley Mack of Boston.

Pal Reed and Franks in Woonsocket Bout

Pal Reed will continue his merry ringe surge when he tries to dispose of Soldier Franks in a ten-round bout at Woonsocket tonight. It will be Franks' first major effort and if he wins he will be in a position to secure matches with some of the best of our middleweights. Willie Corbett of Harvard and Eddie Parker of Woonsocket will tangle in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Paul Doyle's challenge of Dave Shade has caused considerable comment in fistic circles. There are many keen judges of ring doings who believe that Doyle's remarkable speed and boxing ability will more than offset Shade's punching [illegible]. Shade would find it much more difficult to hit Doyle than he did to connect with Siegel.

"WHERE IS THAT GUY?"

HARVARD HOPES FOR VICTORY OVER BRITONS

Crimson Lacrosse Team Working Hard for Big Matches This Month

The Harvard lacrosse team, while handicapped by unsuitable playing weather, is making good strides and aiming to put across a stiff jolt on the Oxford-Cambridge team of England, when they visit Soldiers' Field, April 25.

The Britishers have already opened their American invasion, defeating Lehigh, which has practically a green team, and had little chance for practice.

Harvard did not do so very well last year, although they defeated Pennsylvania and Cornell, but were easy for Yale, Syracuse and Annapolis.

However, the team has lost only four of its members, and has the crack undefeated freshmen twelve of last Spring to draw upon.

The Harvard captain is Ted Pratt, who is goal tender. As the season progressed, last Spring, Pratt showed constant improvement and Coach Catton believes that the leader this year will prove one of the strongest men on the team.

Moose Harris was the big noise in the Red Sox camp with the [illegible] in his four times at bat. [illegible] Clevelander battered out a home run and a triple.

The feature attraction at the Dorchester High gym tomorrow night will be the rubber game of the St. Mark's C. C.-Robert Fulton [illegible] series and should easily draw the largest crowd of the season, as the followers of each team are confident of victory for their respective team.

The Chases took the first game 19 to 18, and St. Mark's evened it last week, winning the second game 26 to 15.

The St. Mark's Shamrocks will meet the All Saints [illegible] in the preliminary, while [illegible] game will bring together the Dorchester Centre and the St. Vincent five of South Boston. Bart Sullivan will referee the [illegible] contest.

Triple Play Feature of Harvard Contest

Despite the fact that the Old Colony Trust Company startled Soldiers Field spectators yesterday afternoon by a sensational triple play, the bankers proved no match for the Harvard nine and the Crimson team won by 8 to 0.

A home run by Jacko Conlon and a triple by George Owen were other features of the clash. They contributed materially to the Harvard victory.

THREE FINAL BOUTS GO TO WINNERS BY K. O.

Three of the finals in the open amateur boxing tournament of the George Dilboy Post, V. F. W., were decided by the knockout route.

In all there were twelve weight bouts.

In the 108-pound class Tommy [illegible] of Lowell put over a sleep producing punch on Leo Morgan of Watertown in two rounds.

John Moran of East Boston swung hard on John Mullen of the West End and Howard [illegible] in the first round. It was a [illegible] credit.

In the 135-pound class Louis [illegible] of the Boston Y. M. C. A. won from Ed Williams of East Boston [illegible] three rounds. It was [illegible] in which the K. O. did not figure.

HARVARD TAKES MONEY OUT OF OLD SOCK

Will Unleash Bank Roll and Spend $100,000 on Soldiers Field

Major Fred W. Moore of the Harvard Athletic Association announces that during the Spring and Summer the sum of $100,000 will be expended in the development of Soldiers Field for athletic facilities.

A new football field for the freshmen and scrub teams, several new tennis courts, and the reclamation of twenty-five acres of swamp land are the chief items in the expenditure of [illegible].

The new gridiron will be inside of the recently erected track and although it will not be surrounded by stands or bleachers it will provide a more appropriate place for the substitute football players.

The new tennis courts will fill a much desired want of a great many students. Despite the fact that there are more than sixty courts at Harvard there has been a constant demand for more and Spring and Fall afternoons have witnessed large numbers of students awaiting turns for courts.

By reclaiming the twenty-five acres of swampy land in the north [illegible] of the field there will be room for more diamonds and gridirons.

MITCHELL THREATENS BIG SHIFT IN MAKEUP OF THE BRAVES

HOLKE SHOWING SIGNS OF FALLING OFF AND SHAKEUP IS DUE

By NICK FLATLEY.

Lynchburg, Va., April 7.—The Braves have now completed preliminary training for their double-header season, for a couple of days of rain have gummed up the Cook's tour program and incidentally halted the Mitchell rush to get out ahead of the Senators. The only good thing about these somewhat Southern showers is that they don't call for a couple of pastimes later on.

The rest didn't do [illegible] only a bit of harm, as the [illegible] had [illegible] kind of insurance Noah needed on the ark, and got [illegible] for loafing than they would have for playing. Two days on the sidelines don't hurt athletes in good condition, although a few more damp sessions might be dangerous.

No sprinklers were turned on down in Florida so now the elements are getting even. It has rained enthusiastically for the past thirty-six hours, and also growing [illegible] might [illegible]. The [illegible] have been removed from the [illegible] or the upper berths, wherever they happened to be, and the only fears the managers have is that some of their stars will catch colds.

Final Minor League Town Appearance Listed for Today

The final minor town appearance was listed for this afternoon, for the teams depart here for Washington and the regular hotel life and everything like that. In the midst of other tours, which stretched over a fortnight, in villages not known to the [illegible] or anybody else, this excursion hasn't been hard to take, though nobody is exactly cheering for an extension.

The Braves land in Washington at twelve tonight and will remain until Monday morning when they fly over to Baltimore for a crack at Jack Dunn's International champions. They have a chance to even up this series by winning two of the three remaining games listed, and from their present spirit appear capable of accomplishing at least that much.

Manager McNeil won't be heartbroken at losing the large portion of the engagement, as a flock of early defeats gave his performers a chance to show their recuperative powers and come up from the ruck in the fashion most approved by directors.

A couple of victories erase the memory of past defeats more rapidly than June sun would melt snow balls if any happened to be around in that patch.

Mitch just now is slightly bothered about the first base situation, as Holke hasn't been hitting as well as expected although his work in other departments has been up to snuff.

Just Now Mitch Wonders About First Base Situation

Mitch has three embryo first sackers, and will shoot one of them into the picture, if the veteran Walter doesn't brace up shortly. Tyler, Barbare and Catcher Gibson have all [illegible] some experience around the initial [illegible] and are all good hitters.

With Ty and Barbare on the job Mitch would have a switch proposition for first that would worry the pitchers exceedingly.

Both birds can hammer the agate so viciously that it's sort of a crime to keep them out of the festivities. Tyler, with the Cubs, did a lot of [illegible] around the bag while Barbare parked there several times during his long and honorable services as utility man on various clubs.

Things are getting so close to a switch in this spot that the two prospects are warming up mitts for first [illegible] efforts. This may shake up Holke, who hasn't had any serious competition for so long that perhaps he needs pushing.

The Wrecked Sox garnered five runs with eleven hits, Left Fielder Joe Harris getting a home run and a triple and scoring three times. George Burns got three blows, one a two-bagger.

One of the dazzling scenes in "Beauty's Worth." The demure Prudence Cole (Marion Davies) carries off the honors in a charming charade and amazes the sophisticated colony of fashion by her beauty and versatility.

COMPLIMENTS of [illegible] stunning girl. [illegible] Why don't you introduce [illegible] Would she be around [illegible] The [illegible] greeted Amy [illegible] tried to smile.

Henry was dumfounded. He was trying to remember what it was he had promised to tell Prudence in the long ago. A few days ago it had seemed foolish, now it seemed to be the most important thing in his life.

"What did you think of her?" asked his mother, beaming.

"Wonderful."

"Maybe after this you'll give me credit for knowing beauty when I see it," said his self-satisfied parent. "I wish you would pay more attention to Prudence after this, Henry."

Henry did not have to be urged; he became suddenly aware that Prudence was the one shining light in the stellar company at Haven. He wondered how he had been so blind, and the general anxiety of his friends to make closer acquaintance with this new paragon only whetted his desire to press his own claims.

"Say, Garrison," said one man, "I'd like awfully well to meet Miss Cole. She's the most beautiful girl here, all right."

Henry headed for the door. He was stopped again. "Oh, Garrison, I want you to introduce me to Miss Cole; she's some idol, I'll say."

Rovein and Prudence had seen him leave the astonished Amy without a word of explanation. Rovein remarked: "You must have been beautiful to make him do that, but if he could see you now he'd fall down and worship you."

Prudence made her escape to follow the artist's advice and to leave a free field for conversation to the smart set of Haven.

Rovein was a much-lauded person the following day when he appeared at the swimming pool. Nothing succeeds like success is an axiom that only needs proving to make the prover a marked object.

But the artist's presence among the gay butterflies of fashion was not traceable to any yearning for praise, but rather that he might be a further witness of the advancing progress of Prudence Cole.

Henry and Amy, attired in bathing costumes, were discussing the charades; Tommie's eyes were turned toward the hotel as though expecting the goddess of the evening before to appear in a cloud of glory, and Peter was waiting Rovein's word to start along the shore for a painting expedition.

"You're a magician, Rovein," said Henry. "You certainly worked a miracle last night."

"Just you wait a little while; in the language of Broadway, you ain't seen nothin' yet."

The sight of a figure emerging from the hotel caused him to rise. As he moved away, Amy could not repress her feeling. "Some awfully queer people have wandered into this place lately."

But Henry was not the usual attentive slave; his eyes had followed Rovein, and as Prudence became the target of all eyes, Miss Tillson flushed and subsided.

Rovein, standing apart, watched the play and enjoyed it. The young lady, walking to the edge of the pool and nodding to the various bows bestowed upon her, hesitated a moment before discarding the cape that had formerly hidden the most grotesque bathing suit Haven had ever beheld.

Slowly the garment fell from her shoulders, and she stood revealed in a creation that would have done credit to the beach at Deauville.

Rovein noted with a grin the amazed look in the faces of the society seals; the rush of the younger men to Miss Cole's vicinity, and the glare of envy that swelled into Amy's face.

Standing on the edge of the pool with a nonchalance that comes with the knowledge of queendom, Prudence accepted a proffered cigarette and lit it.

No one could have quibbled over the way she held it or the way she puffed at it; Amy Tillison had a feeling that she had been fooled, and began to wonder whether Mrs. Garrison was at the bottom of it.

But in the midst of this triumph a cloud was gathering; it came with the suddenness of a Summer thunderstorm and in human form.

It first gave manifestation of danger at the hotel itself when the trap from the morning train brought up the Misses Whitney, who had decided to pay a visit to Haven and see how Prudence was getting on.

Jane, engaged in a game of chess with Peter, saw the vision of the two spinsters and rose hastily.

Miss Elizabeth wasted no time on preliminaries: "Where is our niece, Jane?"

And then Jane, who had never told a lie, faltered, and with the vision of Prudence in the bathing suit designed by Rovein vividly before her, she stammered, "I don't know."

"You don't know?" echoed Miss Cynthia.

"Your niece is down by the pool, ladies," volunteered Peter; "it's only a little way, right across the lawn—you can almost see it from here."

"Thank thee," said Miss Elizabeth; "we shall see thee later, Jane."

"What have you done? Oh, you wicked man," cried the angry woman, as the niece hunters vanished.

"Now they'll see her and everything will be ruined."

Jane's knowledge of her employers was based on years of observation. "I'm going after them," she announced, and despite the pleas of the chess player she made a third figure in the march to the pool.

Never had Prudence been enjoying herself more; the smoking of the cigarette was something of a task, but the knowledge that the aloof Henry was every instant becoming more and more her ardent admirer made even that disagreeable experiment a pleasure.

Moreover, the white face of Amy added to her enjoyment. All's fair in love and war, and Prudence was making the most of her ammunition.

Rovein looked on and chuckled, conscious that his pupil was crowning herself with glory, and yet he could not bring himself to believe that a sweet, charming girl like Miss Cole could see anything in a simpleton like Henry. He was cherishing a secret hope of his own.

Down to the pool marched the Misses Whitney, conspicuous in their Quaker costumes. Mrs. Garrison, whose eyes missed nothing, was the first to see them; the consequences to Prudence were not difficult to guess, but even she had no time to warn the young lady. The cigarette fell from her fingers and

A general turning of heads caused Prudence to turn also; then with a quick wit that would have done credit to an older and wiser head, she plunged into the pool.

The vision of their niece in a modern bathing costume had almost deprived the aunts of breath; their cheeks had flushed and they were covered with embarrassment. Prudence's action gave them a chance to turn their thoughts into another channel and almost with one voice they cried "Save my niece, she's drowning."

This was the chance for the fickle Tommie; without waiting for further exhortation he plunged after her and delighted at a chance of making pretense of rescuing such a charming swimmer. Together they reached the edge of the pool where Henry assisted nobly in getting the dripping young lady out.

Again Miss Elizabeth's protest against modernism came to the fore: "It is best the water hide her until some one gets a blanket."

The useful cape fulfilled this function, and Prudence, followed by the aunts and Mrs. Garrison and the now attentive Henry started back toward the hotel with Rovein not far behind.

"As soon as my niece is properly dried and clothed we shall depart," said the elder Miss Whitney to her old friend, Mrs. Garrison.

"But, my dear Elizabeth, you mustn't take her away, don't you realize that Prudence has come out since she's been here?"

Miss Elizabeth may not have been without a sense of humor even if she did not smile. "I realized how much she has come out before I saw her go in," she said stiffly.

"What shall I do?" asked Prudence to Rovein, who had now reached her side. "Do, my dear! Don't let them bluff you out. Don't you see the young man is on the verge of surrender?"

So Prudence walked back to Jane hovering in the background and disappeared to clothe herself in sanity once more.

And all the while Mrs. Garrison pleaded that Miss Cole remain to further adorn Haven where she had made such a hit, and all the while the aunts remained unyielding and visibly vexed.

Until the hero of the early days patted his mother on the shoulder and spoke to the spinsters with the authority of one who knows his own mind at last.

RIGHT WAY TO EAT

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

READING while eating is not a hygienic practice. An exception may be made, however, in the case of humorous writings.

Fast eating is very injurious. It means much harder work for the stomach, and is a common cause of gastric catarrh, not to speak of worse conditions.

Through slow eating and thorough mastication we can do with less food, since nutrition is directly favored because of the better digestion. Thorough mastication means proper exercise of the teeth and a better circulation around their roots upon which their integrity largely depends.

Whether we should rest or exercise after meals depends upon individual variations. Weak persons should rest. Those who are gouty, rheumatic, diabetic or obese should exercise little. In general a short walk should be taken, after which rest should be indulged in. Mental occupation after eating is best not resumed for an hour.

Meals should be eaten every day at the same time, and under normal conditions we will be hungry when the hour of eating arrives.

It is well to eat in company, if possible, as this favors slower eating, better mastication, and, if the company is congenial and jovial, more gastric juice will be secreted.

Strenuous exercise just before or after meals is not hygienic, since fatigue lessens the amount of gastric juice.

A common error is the eating of too much bread, which conduces to acid fermentation and obesity. Bread is not very easily digested, requiring five times more pepsin and ferments than does meat.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN CITY

"HANNAH," he said gently, taking his wife's hand in his, "I looked into Patty's room as you asked me to do. There is no need to be worried about her. The dear child is fast asleep."

Mrs. Hollingshead fell asleep, holding her husband's hand, after he had assured her of her daughter's safety. But she awakened at the end of an hour in a state of nervous excitement that neither of her attendants could quiet.

"I will stay with her. You telephone for the doctor?" Mr. Hollingshead said to Adelaide at last. "She is wearing herself out."

Adelaide Hurried

Adelaide hurried to the telephone. During the hour in which the invalid had slept the girl had gone to her own room and dressed as if for the day. She knew she would be busy later.

After summoning Dr. Carter, she took the husband's place at the bedside.

"I will stay by her while you go and dress," she said gently. "I am afraid you will catch cold sitting here in your pajamas and bath-robe."

She felt almost as if she were the daughter of this stricken man. He looked at her now, dully.

"I won't catch cold," he protested.

"You will be needed later—by her," the girl reminded him. "Her peace of mind will depend on you," she added in [illegible]

"What are you [illegible] about?" the invalid asked—the question that Adelaide had so often heard her ask of her own child. She answered truthfully.

"I am urging Mr. Hollingshead to put on warmer clothing. You know I called him to come to you—and he did not wait to dress."

"He must not leave me!" the invalid whimpered. "He must not!"

"He must!" the girl said gently, but firmly, "just for a short time."

The blind woman began to cry softly. The man looked helplessly at the attendant.

"Don't worry. I will see to her," she said to him in a low voice. "Go and dress. You will have to let the doctor in when he rings."

He obeyed as if he had been a child. In five minutes he was back again, fully dressed. His wife was still crying.

"She will wear herself out!" he murmured anxiously. "I wish the doctor would come! I know this will tell on her heart!"

"Not before Dr. Carter gets here," the girl soothed. "Talk to her and try to divert her thoughts. I will return in a few moments."

She left the room. In ten minutes she was back, carrying a cup of steaming coffee.

Gave Him a Drink

"Drink this, Mr. Hollingshead," she coaxed.

Mrs. Hollingshead's sobs had ceased, but her breath was labored. There was a pinched look about her features.

The girl did not call the man's attention to these symptoms. Instead, while he drank the coffee, she took her seat by the bed.

She was still there when the front doorbell rang. She listened while the master of the house went downstairs. She heard a murmured parley in the lower hall. She wondered how the father was telling the tragic news to the doctor.

However he told it, it took little time. For, before she could believe that the conversation between the two men could be ended, Dr. Carter stood at the side of the bed.

He bent over the patient and spoke to her soothingly as she started and moaned.

HOME-MADE HOME

—By Loretto C. Lynch—

"IF there is one thing to be desired in a husband more than anything else, it is his ability to be handy with tools," writes Mrs. S.

"During the war we lost everything we owned. But my husband came back safe and was fortunate in securing a position. But we had no money with which to purchase furniture. We saved my husband's wages and first bought two [illegible] single beds and suitable covering for them. Then we took time searching for bargains in second-hand furniture."

She [illegible] what they purchased and how they did "it over." Their renovation of the dining room furniture which came from seven different second-hand stores is interesting.

The table was originally in black mission. The chairs were in brown mission. The sideboard and the china cabinet were in highly-glossed oak.

The dining-room was rather dark. The woodwork was changed to white and the walls were painted a yellow cream. They decided upon white—washable—finished furniture. Varnish remover was used as was paint remover and the wood scrubbed with lye. Then the refinishing began.

Covers and runners of cretonne featuring deep oragne, green and black designs were introduced. Art linen with motifs embroidered or stenciled on it in colors similar to those of the cretonne might have been used in place of the cretonne.

Window boxes painted white with a design repeated at regular intervals in black, orange and green, held pots of Boston ferns or pots of flowering daffodils.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother-in-Law Again

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I'm engaged to a young man, but he now lives with his mother and she has invited herself to make her home with me. Now, she has four married daughters with whom I think she should make her home. Don't you think her place is with her daughters? If I break the engagement would I be doing wrong? She is a woman of a disagreeable disposition.

ANXIOUS.

IF you love the man you're planning to marry, you ought to have only the tenderest feelings for his mother. There's no question of with whom she ought to make her home. Mothers are likely to feel a great deal of attachment for only sons, and if your fiance's mother longs to stay with him, aren't you a little selfish to try to turn her out and send her into the already established home of one of her daughters?

14 Years Difference

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a man of middle-age and in love with a girl fourteen years my junior. I've never been married nor have I been in love before, neither did I come to believe that there was any such a thing as love, but now I know that I was wrong. I love her, even though I fully realize my age. Do you think that a young woman can be happy with a man of my age, as I would not like to see her unhappy?

A. S.

AGE isn't a barrier when two people belong to the same generation and have tastes in common and share hopes and ambitions. If you love a girl fourteen years your junior, perhaps your experience will make you the more tender and understanding and give her a greater chance of beauty and love and contentment.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

"No food. No credit."

Looks funny, doesn't it? It is the headline of an advertisement published by the First National Bank of Greenwood, Miss. The advertisement goes on to say that a year ago the bank had announced that "no loans shall be made where the proceeds are to be used for the purchase of food."

As this may not be easily understood by those unfamiliar with agriculture, and particularly conditions in the South, it may be well to quote this further explanation from the bank's decree:

"Attention is called to this announcement at this time in order to emphasize the fact that it is the permanent policy of this bank. The directors do not assume to dictate the business of the customers of the bank, but they do take the position that it is their duty to pass upon the credit worth and financial stength of every borrower of its funds. Experience has demonstrated, especially since the advent of the boll weevil, that the one-crop man is not a desirable credit risk, and, therefore, no such loans will be taken by this bank."

Are banks justified in laying down the law to business men?

I talked this week with a very able man of affairs who, after making a big mark elsewhere, came to New York about a year or two ago. He was tremendously bitter in his denunciation of many bankers. Here are some of the things he said, and said with emphasis:

"Most big bankers are fair-weather friends. When your business is booming along successfully and you don't need any help from them, they are anxious to do business with you and let you have money at low rates. They don't even try to make big money off you while you are prospering. But then when depression comes, as it came eighteen months or more ago, these same bankers turn round and start squeezing you to the limit. Instead of unselfishly trying to do everything within their power to help you out of thehole, their one thought seems to be, 'how much can I make out of this?' One has the feeling that they try to hit you when you are down. They should try to make their money out of their customers when their customers can well afford it, and then do their darndest to help the customer when he gets into a tight place.

"Then your big bankers do another very foolish thing. When they find they cannot get their money promptly out of some big concern, instead of looking around and finding the most capable men in the country to jump in and take hold, they usually depute some vice-president to take hold and run things. These vice-presidents, as a rule, know nothing but banking, and are utterly incapable of solving the problems they are assigned to tackle.

* * *

"Of course, it might cost $50,000 or $75,000 or even $100,000 a year to get the right man to reorganize a large concern in difficulties. But what does that matter if the unsuccessful enterprise is transformed into a successful enterprise, earning millions instead of losing millions a year? The recovery of a good many concerns which got into trouble during the last year or two would have been much quicker if the bankers who assumed control had taken this course instead of putting some minor vice-president in charge."

* * *

Are these statements warranted? I confess that it isn't by any means the first time complaints of this kind have been made.

* * *

Nevertheless, are not bankers justified in keeping very close tabs on the activities of those who want to borrow money from them? Is not the stand taken by this Mississippi bank warranted? The customer who relies solely upon cotton, goes broke when anything happens to destroy the crop. On the other hand, where part of the land has been put into other crops, far less risk is entailed. If the boll weevil destroys the growing cotton then the corn, tobacco or other crops may turn out very well. It has been found from painful experience that the great majority of Southerners cannot be persuaded to change their accustomed methods; they go on year after year raising nothing but cotton. If more banks were to adopt the policy of the one here mentioned, more rapid progress would be made in bringing about crop diversification through the great Southland.

This bank's action has this much to commend it: It aims at prevention, whereas very few banks bother very much about the affairs of their customers until things actually go wrong and extraordinary assistance becomes necessary. As a general rule banks which lend money to business concerns are content to let things move along until something untoward happens.

Would it not be better for all concerned if banks were to manifest a little more interest in the affairs of their borrowers right along and not wait until the horse has been stolen before trying to close the stable door?

* * *

Is there not food for thought in the policy adopted by this Southern bank?

OIL AND STEEL ISSUES LED AT FINISH

Rails Foremost During Forenoon; Motors Under Selling Pressure From Opening

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The New York market closed fairly strong, there having been a rally in the last hour. Mexican Petroleum, after morning weakness, was showing 2⅝ gain late in the day. Studebaker recovered all but a fraction of more than two points loss.

Crucible was the strongest steel, advancing more than three. Allied Chemical was off a point late in the session. Brooklyn Rapid Transit led New York tractions, advancing almost four points. Interboro preferred gained more than four.

Steels and oils led the afternoon uptourn. Rock Island did the best among rails in late trading. It gained almost three points. Iron Products was among the strongest industrials. The market was very active, transactions approximating 1,500,000 shares.

While the market was up at the opening the list did not continue the forward movement as a whole. After overnight orders to buy had been filled, profit taking by professionals caused many industrials to ease off. The tone was rather heavy during the morning, all groups considered. Oils and motors were under the greatest pressure. The consensus of brokerage opinion appears to be that a reaction is overdue.

Rails were the morning feature, retaining strength if not increasing it. Coal roads were the strongest kind of carriers, despite the great strike. Their gains varied from fractions to about two points. New York tractions sold at their highest for some time, B. R. T. being up three points in the last hour. There were a few spectacular gains. Gulf States Steel was showing ten points gain before the close. Electric Storage Battery advanced four in the forenoon. The market was irregular at noontime and rallied in the afternoon, when shipping shares became prominent. Sales for profit in the last hour again checked the advance. During the day many issues, especially rails, sold at new highs for this or last year.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent. Time money is said to be more abundant in New York now than at any time within six years. The Federal Reserve ratio changed but a trifle within a week, standing at 77.7 against 77.8. Foreign exchange rates ruled lower at the start, but rallied.

Coal Roads Were Rail Leaders

New York, April 7.—Railroad stocks continued their advancing tendency right through to the close. Among the rails which figured in today's advance were Norfolk & Western, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley, Rock Island and Baltimore & Ohio. The last named earned at the rate of $11 a share during the first two months of 1922 and the directors are anxious to resume dividends on the common stock so that their bonds will be legal for savings banks in New York and other States.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit reflected the more favorable situation in the local traction program. This stock has advanced from a low of 6¾, showing at present prices a gain of over 300 per cent.

Steel stocks were again in good form, and spectacular advances were made by Gulf States Steel, in the high price division and Otis Steel in the low priced section. Gulf States sold above 80 for a perpendicular climb of 8 points before the close. Otis Steel preferred has advanced about 15 points within a week. This company is now operating at plant capacity and is in an exceedingly strong cash position.

New York Traction Bonds Advance

By MUNROE ROBERTS.
Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 7.—The feature of the listed bond market today was the sharp rise in the bonds of the Interboro and allied local traction companies as a result of the reported agreement which will avert receivership for the elevated railway.

The I. R. T. refunding five per cents opened at 68, an advance of 8¾ points, but subsequently reacted three points; the Interboro-Metropolitan 4½ per cents sold up three points to 17 and the 4½ per cent. certificates up 2½ to 14. In the first hour more than $1,000,000 par value of these bonds changed hands.

There was a broad and active market for Liberty bonds the 4¼s of 1960 again selling at 100; the second 4¼s at 99.14; the third 4¼s at 99.50 and the fourth 4¼ at 99.44. The Victory 4¾s sold at 100.90 and the 3¾s at 100.02.

Railroad bonds were also strong and active. The introduction into Congress of a resolution providing for the recognition of the Obregon government increased the demand for Mexican bonds. The five per cents sold up one point to 63 and the fours up 1¾ to 56½. The Czechoslovakian eights, sold in the open market yesterday at 94½, commanded 95½ today in the listed market.

Metal Market

New York, April 7.—Metal prices were: Copper, all positions offered 12¾. Lead, all positions, 4.90 to 5.10. Spelter, spot, 4.82½ to 4.90; April, 4.85 to 4.95; May and June, 4.90 to 5.

Coffee Quotations

New York, April 7.—The coffee market was up 9 to 15 points at the opening, prices being: May, offered 9.95; July, 9.81 to 9.82; September, 9.59 to 9.60; December, 9.56 to 9.58; March offered 9.50.

The St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank has reduced its rediscount rate from 5 per cent. to 4½ per cent.

GLOOM OF '21 FADING AWAY, SAYS EVANS

Looks Now as Though Slide to Prosperity Will Be Done With Ease

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, April 7.—From a rickety child of a few months ago, the security market has grown to a stalwart young man. During a process of many months his insides were well strengthened and built up with juicy bonds, and now his muscles are getting strength in the stock market.

The change is much more rapid than has been seen in a case of panic or depression in past years. This is due to the increased wealth in this country, not the increase during and since the war, but the enormous gains since the last decade of the nineteenth century. Never was a country so well fortified and so well furnished.

As things now look we shall slide past the distressing effects of the war period into a solvent and prosperous condition with comparative ease. The dragon's teeth sown in 1921, are now sprouting up in the steel columns, and other equipment of large industry. The American capacity for gloom in 1921 was enormous, but it was not filled up, and now we are beginning to forget that there was such a thing as gloom.

PACKING ISSUES RECEDE IN BOSTON

Mixed Price Movement on Local Exchange; Curb Market Weak and Dull

Irregularity marked the price movement on the Boston exchange all the morning. At the opening most of the active issues were up, but by noon losses outnumbered gains. Profit taking accounted for the shift. Trading had breadth and was active. New England Telephone advanced half a point to its highest since 1917. Boston & Maine common advanced 3 to 24½, its high for this year. Swift International dropped 1⅝ to 19, its lowest in more than a year. Packing issues were heavy and dealt in on a larger scale than usual. Coppers were dull and most of those traded in had a tendency to decline. General Electric made the biggest forenoon gain, rising 3½ to 163. Maine Central preferred was up 2 to 63. Eastern Steamship gained ¼ to 66⅝. Edison 1 to 171 and Mergenthaler 2½ to 149½. Swift & Co. sagged 2 to 103.

Curb trading was quiet and this market was weak. Active issues were Boston and Montana, Crystal, Eureka and Three Metals. At noon Crystal was up 1-16 at 1 5-16. Chief recovered its dividend and was up 1-16 at 3 13-16 besides, and Texana gained half a cent at six cents. Among declines were Southern States five cents at 27 cents, New Eureka two cents at 25 cents, Boston and Montana two cents at 25 cents, Alpha one cent at 29 cents, Verde Mines one cent at 24 cents and Verde Central ⅛ at three. Three Metals lost its opening gain of two cents.

BACK DRAWINGS IN TEST FIVE CENTS EACH

By THE TEST EDITOR.

Single drawings of the Boston American's $5,000 Title Test subsequent to No. 22 and down to the present date may be had direct from this office at five cents each. The price includes two cents for mailing.

Any of the first twenty-two drawings will be sent free of charge to any contestant who asks for them and who sends along a large self-addressed envelope. A charge is made only for drawings later than No. 22. Three cents each; five cents if sent by mail.

This arrangement has been made for the convenience of contestants who may have lost, destroyed or failed to get a drawing or two. Any who want to make their own copies of the drawings may do so and such copies will be received without question and given the same consideration as Test Drawings cut from the paper or bought at this office.

As the weather continues to improve, nearer and nearer draws the day when the Boston American's check for $1,000 must be mailed to some one who now reads these lines. Who is it going to be?

No one knows. Some contestants who today rides happily along with a Correct Title for each and every drawing which has appeared up to date may begin to slip today and pull seven or eight bloomers in a row. You never can tell. That is one of the things that make the Title Tests interesting.

But there isn't anything much more interesting, as New England's wonderful vacation time comes along, than the hard cash with which to pay for a Summer at the shore, a camp at Cobbett's Pond, or a vacation in the mountains. Not long after Test Drawing No. 60 has appeared, therefore, the Boston American will pay 219 awards in cash to those who send in the largest numbers of Correct Titles. The awards:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 Each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each	550
Total	$5,000

CASCARETS 10¢

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Bilious Liver

The nicest cathartic-laxative in the world to physic your liver and bowels when you have Dizzy Headache, Colds, Biliousness, Indigestion, or Upset, Acid Stomach is candy-like "Cascarets." One or two tonight will empty your bowels completely by morning, and you will feel splendid. "They work while you sleep." Cascarets never stir you up or gripe like Salts, Pills, Calomel, or Oil, and they cost only ten cents a box. Children love Cascarets, too.

The Senate Did Well

To Be Congratulated on Killing Vicious "Judges" Bill After Passage by the House, a Supposedly More Democratic Body

It is not often that we are able to congratulate the Massachusetts Senate, and are obliged to condemn the House of Representatives on account of a vicious bill which the House has passed and the Senate has killed.

But it happens that this is the situation with respect to the bill which passed the House empowering three judges of our Superior Court to remove the Mayors of our cities for alleged misconduct in office which these judges thought warranted their removal.

Now consider the character of the membership of the House of Representatives, supposed to be the more democratic branch of the Legislature, in an alleged democracy, which would vote by a liberal majority to put into the hands of three men, not elected by the people, but appointed, not for a short period, but for life, and absolutely immune from the control of public opinion, the power of removing the chief executives of our great cities, who are elected by their fellow citizens, and whose term of office is short, and who thus have to go back frequently to their people for an accounting of their stewardship.

This bill would be absolutely without justification even if there were no method of removing a Mayor who developed to be bad, while in office, before his term expired. But if a Mayor has been guilty of criminal misconduct, the verdict of a jury and the sentence of a judge would remove him. If it is desirable to remove a Mayor before his term of office expires, for misconduct which is not criminal, it is perfectly easy to pass a general law providing that the Mayors of the cities may be recalled at any time on the petition of a certain number of citizens. That provision is in some of our city charters, and in nearly all of the city charters of our more progressive western States. Then, if in the judgment of the majority of the people of a city, a Mayor has acted in a way that is not becoming to his office, he may be removed immediately.

There were two kinds of support given to this bill in the House. One was that element which does not believe in democracy; which has no faith in public opinion; no faith in the control by the people of their government, and seizes every opportunity to substitute for government by the people a government by a select few. That tribe would have a monarchy here tomorrow if they could get it.

They do not want a recall of Mayors, because they do not believe that the public knows when it has a good Mayor, and when it has not.

The other element which supported this bill was interested in making a drive at Mayor Curley. The bill originally was directed entirely at Mayor Curley and was broadened to make it seem not quite so invidious. It is a thoroughly vicious bill, and we scarcely expected to live to see the day when the Massachusetts Senate must be thanked for killing it and the Massachusetts House condemned for passing it.

Mine Operators Inefficient

Isn't It Fine the Government Stepped In to Cut Out Waste?

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Senator Borah, the chairman of the Senate committee which has been investigating the conditions under which coal is mined and marketed, declares that the waste in the production of coal is incredibly great, that the whole mining industry is rotten with waste and inefficiency, which burdens the American people with huge sums in their cost of living.

Senator Borah suggests that the time has come for the public to take the mines and operate them as part of a great government function.

One of the national government bureaus estimates that more than five hundred million dollars is wasted every year in the mining of soft coal alone. Let it be understood that this waste is not due to the inefficiency of labor, but entirely to the inefficiency of management or capital. It is the owners of the mines who are guilty of this unpardonable loss.

President Lewis of the miners' organization says that the operation of the mines is so inefficient that the mine workers are only able to work 125 days out of a total of more than 300 working days.

This enforced idleness of the mine workers is not due to lack of steady demand for coal, but to an overproduction in which the law of supply and demand is not allowed to operate.

For a huge overproduction does not operate to reduce the price of coal and thus stimulate the demand for it.

The average pay of the miners, who must delve in the bowels of the earth, living on pumped artificial air, seeing in broad daylight with artificial light, in constant danger of the coal gas and cave-ins, is only $700 a year, or less than $15 a week.

President Lewis says that the miners do not ask for more wages this year, but they are determined that they will not take less by an arbitrary reduction by the mine owners in violation of their contract to negotiate concerning the miners' pay.

In the meantime the American people should understand that there is nothing in the present situation which justifies any increase in the price of coal. There is enough coal mined to take care of this country's consumption for some time to come, and the present strike, which is actually a lockout, can offer no excuse to increase the already intolerably high price of coal.

Showed Fine Sentiment

Governor Cox Invited Scrubwomen of the State House to See Him Sign Vacation Bill

A bill has just been enacted into law giving the fifty-odd scrub women at the State House a two weeks' vacation on pay.

We are astonished to know that they did not already have it. The fact that it was necessary to pass a special law to give these poor women two weeks' vacation on pay shows how utterly justice fails to be done automatically and how the old law, that to them that have shall be given and from them that have not shall be taken away even that which they have, prevails everywhere.

Governor Cox showed a fine sentiment when he stopped the work of these toiling women and invited them to come to his office and watch him sign the bill. To one of the women who had worked in the State House for twenty-seven long years he gave one of the pens with which, by his signature, he made their right to a vacation with pay a law.

The other pen he gave to Representative Mellen of Charlestown, who fathered the proposal. We congratulate Mr. Mellen.

Somebody's Birthday

BORN today, you have more than your share of initiative and steadfastness of purpose. You should be energetic, resourceful and ambitious and, as your stars show, probably avaricious. You may have the good fortune to become a capitalist and the bad fortune to die a miser.

You are pre-eminently the business type, but not without your lighter and more flippant side. You are fond of society and entertainment and can even undergo an occasional concert or two if you don't think you will be caught at it. This aesthetic side of your nature should occupy more of your attention than it does because your character might easily freeze into the monotone of the money-grabber, and you have need of constant recreation.

Both men and women of this date are passionate and affectionate and attractive to the opposite sex, but, as might be expected, rather abrupt in their courtship.

Today brings good conditions for all those entering new enterprises. Anyone planning a business trip would do well to start today.

The ensuing year of your life will be a highly profitable one, both for yourself and for all those with whom you are in financial contact.

A child born today will have a most delightful personality and will from childhood attract people.

Famous persons born today:

Wordsworth—Poet.
Jacques Loib—Psychologist.
William H. Talcott—Civil Engineer.
Charles F. Barhard—Capitalist and philanthropist.

DOCTORS MAKE TREATMENT FIT PURSES OF PATIENTS

BERLIN, April 7.—Desperate conditions prevail in German medical circles. Physicians no longer prescribe such medicines as they know to be the most effective, but only such as their patients can afford to pay for.

This tragic state of affairs is due to the fact that the drugs possessing the most powerful curative properties must be imported and paid for at the dollar rate.

The physicians keep their prescription formulas and the latest drug tariffs lying side by side on their desks and try to fit the price to the purses of their patients.

One of the most drastic instances of the rise in drug prices is that of quinine, which is now selling for 185 times its pre-war value, just when the influenza wave is at its height, to say nothing of permanent malaria among the disabled soldiery which participated in the Balkan campaigns.

Began in November

This enormous rise in the prices of all imported drugs began last November at the time of the catastrophal fall of the mark and corresponding rise of the dollar.

The two outstanding medicines in the "house apothecary" of every German family are aspirin and castor oil, the former of which now costs forty times its pre-war price, while castor oil is fifty-six times as dear as in 1914.

Castor oil was used by the fallon in the military barracks, both by reason of its cheapness and its efficaciousness, as the soldier inclined to report "sick" was soon cured of this habit after having swallowed several doses of the nauseating remedy.

To the increased prices of all drugs, whether imported or native, must be added the very marked increase in bottles and corks, now selling for fifty times their pre-war prices. The high price of cork is explained by the fact that it must be bought in Spain, while the coal scarcity has reacted upon the glass-blowing industry.

Bottles and Corks

The greatest economy is exercised in the use and conservation of second-hand bottles, but this has only created an evil within an evil, as the glass manufacturers have already notified the chemists they will be obliged to shut down the industries if the demand for medicine phials does not increase. This is not a case of profiteering on the part of the German druggists, as they are prevented from setting an arbitrary scale of prices by the official drug tariff fixed by the National Council.

Some idea of the additional burden borne by the consumer is shown in the figures published by the German Sick Fund of the city of Berlin, which during the first half of the year 1921 paid druggists bills to the amount of 12,000,000 marks—at which time the dollar was selling for only seventy cents.

HAVE YOU AN EMERGENCY FUND?

In figuring your expense for a given time, a liberal allowance should be made for outlays which cannot be anticipated.

A surplus should be kept for unexpected demands.

You may have failed in some little business you conducted for a while, because you came to a time when your income would not cover the unexpected expense incurred necessarily in your business.

Pressing demands grow out of a good business.

It requires money to meet these expenses, which you cannot possibly know of beforehand.

As a wage earner, you should lay aside a sum each week to help you over a time, which is bound to come, when you cannot work, or when there is illness in the family.

You don't want to be marooned in a tide of misfortune all because you did not put some money aside for the unexpected in the course of events.

Suppose you are without a job for a period, what would you do?

A bank account, or an investment which is safe and bears an income, makes your mind easier, and you give better service as a worker.

When you are worried you do not do good work.

Have an emergency fund.

City and Town "Flappers"

CHICAGO, April 7.—Flapping is but a state of the soul. Goloshes and short skirts are but the symbols of a sub-conscious condition.

Such is the opinion of Mrs. Stella B. Shepley, chairman of the probation extension committee, who spoke before the State probation officers.

The farm girl flaps, too, only she hasn't as good a press agent as her city sister.

"The rural flapper exists," Mrs. Shepley said, "but she doesn't get the advertising that the boulevard vamp gets. This is perhaps because she doesn't perfume the palms of her hands or rouge her knees.

"More attention must be paid to the girls and boys of the rural districts. More recreation of the right kind must be provided for them. There should be a probation officer in every county to aid in keeping the young people what they should be morally, mentally and physically.

"The wave of delinquency has reached its crisis," she continued. "It has been worse in the country communities than in the cities. Intelligent handling of the problem will minimize it."

Delinquents now come from a younger set than formerly, the probation officers agreed. Prisoners are all younger than they used to be, they added.

There was a difference of opinion whether city boys or country lads were worse. O. G. Connorton, a probation officer, said city boys were worse because they took revolvers and went out and committed robberies.

The small town boy, however, had a harder time to get the right start, others said, because the first time he stayed out of Sunday school he got a bad name and had to "live down to it."

THOSE WHO STUDY AND WAIT FARE BETTER

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1921, Newspaper Feature Service.

"GAILY, gaily, through life wa-a-ander."

I wonder why the old-fashioned song is running through my head this morning.

Such a gay little song it is—with such a pretty waltz movement and so many little light twists and turns and laughing trills and quavers—it makes me think of the fragile flowers we used to find in the forest on the mossy edge of deep, sudden-looking pools.

White they were, dead white, shaped like little bells. The stems were not green or brown like the stems of other blossoms, but snow white, and when you picked them they turned purple almost in an instant, and in ten minutes they were dead and noisome.

Indian pipes, we called them, as children, and none of the girls would ever pick them because we feared that the girl who picked an Indian pipe in the month of May would be deserted by her sweetheart.

Yes, it makes me think of the frail, delicate, spirit-like Indian pipe—the quaint, quavering little waltz song that was such a gay favorite with our grandmothers.

Something else it reminds me of, too—what is it? Something fragile and beautiful and fleeting and unreal—ah, I remember now!

She Reached for Everything

The frost on the windowpane, so glistening, so silvery, so elaborately traced.

How we did love to see, we children. How we made pictures of it and told each other stories about it—the castles and the drawbridge and the tall trees and the leaping cataracts in the pictures the frost drew on the windowpanes.

And then, all at once, while we were looking at it—it was gone.

"Gaily, gaily, through life wander." It is from "Traviata," the little song from the opera which tells of the quick love soon over, the feverish gaiety, the laughing misery of poor, laughing, crying, smiling, dancing, dying Violetta.

What made me think of it, I wonder—today?

Whose face is it I see as I hum it, wistful, pleading, half-sad, half-merry, cynical yet trusting, gay but miserable—oh, I remember now, the little girl who came in to see me yesterday!

What a pretty little thing she was—in her shabby little dress that had a bright touch of smartness about it, too, and her saucy little hat and her eyes which were so bright and her smile that was too quick and eager.

What poor little tragic feet she had, so light, so featherlike and clad in such an impossible pair of shabby dancing slippers, a little run-down at the heels.

She coughed a little, too, and shivered more than once. I wonder what she had for breakfast and how much money there was in that thin little purse of hers. How gay she was, what imitations she gave of everything and everybody—and all the time I felt that she wanted to cry, and it made me cry just to look at her. Poor little Violetta—born to misery and disappointment, just as surely as the picture on the frosted windowpane was doomed to quick destruction.

How pretty she must have been when she was seventeen or eighteen. She's twenty-six or so now, and looks every year of it, poor thing—by daylight. And how she did love gaiety and music, and flowers and dancing.

How eagerly she reached for them with both her helpless little hands—and she got them—for a while. Poor Violetta—she always does get them at first, and she thinks they're going to last, and when they don't her little butterfly heart shrinks, and it is cruel to see her pretending, always pretending—to be gay.

It Was Gay—at First

So he deserted you, after all, poor little Violetta, the sweetheart you were so desperately in love with. Well, well, what did you expect?

Men do not marry the Violettas of life.

"Gaily, gaily"—it was gay at first, wasn't it, Violetta? All laughter and music, and brilliant lights and pretty dresses, and new admirers and new stories and wild rides in the moonlight—but now—

It would have been better, really, if you had worked and studied and waited—wouldn't it?

Did you pick the Indian pipe in the month of May, Violetta, and when you did, were you just carrying out your fate?

Mischief-Making Easy

"WITH every exertion the best of men," says Washington Irving, "can do but a moderate amount of good; but it seems in the power of the most contemptible individual to do incalculable mischief."

THE PLANET MARS IS FULL OF LIFE

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

WHATEVER the astronomers may believe, the planet Mars is still full of life.

Let our Earth be a proof of this. That is to say, if there is anything in a figure of speech! And there certainly is in this one.

Such a statement links again the oldest of the sciences, astronomy with the oldest of the false sciences, astrology. Originally, astrology purported to be, like astronomy, the science of the stars.

Subsequently, however, astrology became a pseudo-science, treating of the supposed influence of the stars upon human affairs and foretelling earthly events by the position and aspect of the stars.

Astrology duly became the parent of modern astronomy, as alchemy of chemistry, by furnishing a powerful motive for the study of natural phenomena.

Honorable Interest

This ancient and honorable interest of the human race in the behavior and relation of the bodies in our solar system is not to be dismissed, in our knowing age, with a scoffing smile.

For instance, the name Venus, "Goddess of Love," is given to one of the planets. There never was such a goddess. But if that planet, arbitrarily given the name of a non-existent goddess, was in the ascendant when you were born, love will dominate your life!

So the wise astrologers say. You lucky person!

But, if you really want to love and be loved, please be assured that nothing can prevent your being a beloved Lover, though Saturn may have presided over your birth!

So also the Romans had in their Pantheon a mythical "God of War," whom they called Mars. Because war means bloodshed, the name Mars was duly given to the red planet (that is to say, the planet whose radiation of light makes an impression of red upon our human eyes). And Mars swims in the infinite ether so neighborly near that in 1924 he will be only the trifling matter of thirty-five millions of miles away from us!

So Mars, who never existed, having loaned his name to a planet in the solar system, is supposed to exert a malefic influence upon the earth!

Latterly, there has been much discussion of that planet and whether or not vegetable, animal and something like human life exists out there.

Be that as it may, to talk again in the figurative speech with which this article was begun, the planet Mars is full of life—whatever the astronomers may say!

Certain it is: that, for some reason or for many reasons, the "Martian" spirit is strong in us. Perhaps, however, that evil tendency towards the mania of mutual murder—culminating in the periodic insanity of war—needs no explanation outside of us.

Probably all the influences, good and evil, constructive and destructive, reside in our human nature.

In Ourselves

It is not in our stars, but in ourselves that we are underlings or overlings, slaves or masters, sinners or saints, cowards or heroes, fools or seers — or just plain, average folks.

If, then, the race that is trying to become human indulges in murderous sprees on occasion, we need blame no distant planet, nor should we otherwise claim helplessness. THE FULL RESPONSIBILITY IS OURS.

We cannot even shift the burden of blame to rulers and statesmen, diplomats and international bankers, to economic greed or territorial covetousness.

The fault is yours, if the possibility of war continues — yours and every other average person's; because the war-lust has not really died out of your heart; because you have not learned to love and value life, the other man's as well as your own!

It is an old, old story. Note these lines in an early chapter of Genesis: "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth and that the whole imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually."

Then followed the Flood!

When, with militant, intelligent good-will, we have succeeded in crowding hatred out of our hearts, then only will the possibility of war be at an end.

It is a slow way to get rid of the influence of Mars. But it is the only sure one; viz., to make "Mars" die a democratic death at the loving hands of all of us!

The other day, some scientist with a publicity sense sent out word that Mars had been proved to be lifeless.

Perhaps our latest war killed him and we shall war no more!
